EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Bismarck seems to fear that the American pig is fed on dynamite.

Mr. Foster, the American Minister to Spain, will sail for Europe on May 10.

Herr Most preaches dynamite, but does his slaying with Samson's weapon.

Mr. Sprague is consoling himself in these days by thinking how many times Governor Butler had to try before he got there.

Parnell declines to attend the Philadelphia Convention. He must have been informed of the condition of the streets streets of that city.

The United States favors law, order and justice just as strongly as she opposes English interference in her methods of procuring them.

The death at San Francisco last week of Thomas H. Blythe, who left a fortune of $3,000,000 and no will, has raised an army of claimants as heirs to the property.

It is said that Governor Fattison will be invited to preside over the sessions of the Land League national convention which meets in Philadelphia on the 26th inst.

Dukes is very much like Banquo's ghost to the people of Uniontown. He will not down at their bidding, but quietly rode into town the other day and put up at his old hotel.

Secretary Folger has granted the request of the Hawaiian government to have its silver money coined at the United State Mints. The San Francisco mint has been selected as the place of coinage.

The corpse has evidently come to life again. A call for a meeting of the state executive committee of the National Greenback-Labor party has been issued by Chairman Heath, to take place at the Jones House, Harrisburg, on the 2d of May.

On Wednesday, the 11th, the legislature had sat just one hundred days, passed twelve bills—five of which were vetoed--and the members have each drawn one thousand dollars from the treasury. During the next fifty days it is expected that some little work will be done.

A manufacturer of explosives named Holgate has been interviewed by a reporter for the Philadelphia Press. He says he has invented a compound six times more powerful than nitro-glycerine, and at one-half the price of that article. He is going now to the Rocky mountains to find a secluded spot in which to perform experiments.

It is a great pity that those who start the fires on the mountains cannot be caught and punished. Such acts of vandalism cause the destruction of young timber,and by destroying the underbrush the mountain is made to look bleak and forbidding. There is a law on the statute book to punish those who may be found guilty of starting such fires. Let a sharp watch be kept for them.

A genuine sensation has been caused in Brooklyn church and musical circles by the announcement that after May 1st the veteran quartet church choir of Plymouth church, the finest in the city, will be dismissed, and there will be only congregational singing under the direction of the organist, Henry Carter. The change is made at Mr. Beecher's request. He thinks there is more music and more religion in three thousand persons singing "Coronation" than in one person warbling an aria from Italian opera.

Pay or Contest.

We have recently received numerous inquiries relative to the Lycoming Fire Insurance Company and its efforts to enforce the collection of continued assessments against its present policy holders. For the benefit of those making inquiry and our readers generally we have gathered some information concerning the status of the company and the action taken by policy holders relative to the matter. The last annual statement made by the officers of the company, December 31, 1879, to the Insurance Department at Harrisburg, showed the company to be in possession of assets of over $54,000 over and above all liabilities, including as liabilities $189,000 required to cancel the cash policies of the company and refund the unearned premiums thereon. But it appears by the sworn testimony of the officers of the company that the indebtedness of the company May 25,1880, when they made assessments 39 and 40 of 12½ per cent. each, was $350,000 over and above all assets, and that this indebtedness did not include the $189,000 to refund unearned premiums to cash policy holders.

The indebtedness, including what it would take to cancel the cash policies, would then have been $539,000. This with the surplus assets on hand December 31, 1879, and assets realized upon assessment made in February, 1880, leaves an indebtedness of about $400,000 that is unaccounted for and which is sought to pe paid by assessments made upon present policy holders, which really should have been imposed upon former policy holders. Whether the present policy holders should be made pay debts of the company incurred before their policies were issued and to pay unearned premiums to cash policy holders are the questions that should be legally determined.

We believe a great wrong and a gross fraud has been practiced upon the present policy holders of the company. About one hundred policy holders in this county have already joined an organization to resist payment of the present assessments until their legal liability to do so is determined.

There are about a hundred more who should join it at once. There is but one of two things to do—that is either pay or resist payment. And if policy holders desire to have the question determined before paying, then, as one case would determine the liability in all, it would be less trouble and expense for all to join, than for each to test the case for himself. And all policy holders who do not feel like contesting for themselves, nor joining others to do so, should pay up like men. We are informed that those who represent the company here, have, in order to prevent the policy holders from effecting a speedy organization to defend against the company, made arrangements with a few to give them the benefit of any litigation that may be had against the company, by refunding to them their assessments, in case the litigation be determined against the company.

This is hardly fair, and as to what extent assessments can be refunded if once received in trust for the creditors of the company, either by the receiver or attorney of the company is a very serious question. It is also quite certain that if the present policy holders can be assessed to pay the entire debts of the company that it will exhaust the face value of every solvent premium note held by the company in Pennsylvania—because the assessments upon premium notes held by the company in other States are not being collected to any considerable extent whatever.

The company, or its receiver, will not and can not surrender the premium notes of the present policy holders upon payment of present assessments for the reason that he knows it will take further and additional assessments thereon to liquidate the entire indebtedness of the company.

Then, all policy holders who do not intend to pay out-right ought to join in defending against the company.

We doubt the propriety of any policy holder paying his assessment conditioned upon its being refunded to him after some others have gone to the expense and trouble of litigating the question. So we say, either pay or contest.

The Presidency.

The most important matter now engaging the attention of the Democrats is the choice of a speaker of the house of representatives, and it is even more important than they appear to appreciate, for upon the wisdom of the selection is very likely to depend their success. In this connection the Philadelphia Telegraph takes occasion to remark that the speaker is not to be chosen because of parliamentary fitness for the place, but because of his position upon the tariff question. The candidate for the Presidency has not yet been chosen, but the Democratic journals and leaders are already building the platform for him to stand upon. Of course different builders are building different sorts of platforms, one a square free trade, or rather tariff-for-revenue-only kind, and the other a protective variety. That of the Sun, built expressly for Mr. Randall to stand upon is: "I. A tariff for revenue only." II. The "tariff the only sort of revenue." That of the World is longer in words, but the spirit of it is neatly compressed into the first plank, to wit: "No more money ought to be collected than is necessary for the want of the federal government when economically administered." That of the Louisville Courier-Journal is longer and more emphatic, and is as follows: "What we want to do is to bid farewell to the Pennsylvanians"—especially to Mr. Randall—"and to Pennsylvania politics, to let Pennsylvania go to the d-vil, and thus emancipated from the iron-clad policy of popular opposition, fling the free flag of reform to the crisp breezes of the west and welcoming winds of the south."

The northern Democrats demand the election of Mr. Randall as speaker, the southern and western Democrats the election of Mr. Carlisle or Mr. Harrison. It is the northern protection sentiment against southern and western free trade sentiment. The issue is a real one, the feeling bitter, and unless the Republicans blunder, they may profit by the falling out of the two sections. It is better that the next President should be a Republican than that the next speaker should be a mild protectionist; then the Republicans should do all they can to defeat the election to the speakership of Mr. Randall, for if he should be elected there will be no revival in the next congress of the tariff question. It will not, in that event, be heard of Mr. Randall will smother it to death at once, or cover it carefully out of sight until after the national election. He will not permit it to become an issue in that campaign. He will let the excitement about it die out, and have it understood that the present protective tariff is the Democrats' only and own tariff. But if Carlisle or Morrison, or Blackburn, or any of the Watterson candidates should be elected, the whole session will glow with the fire of free trade speeches, and the clashing of free trade arms will arouse the whole country.

If the Republican party would elect its president in 1884 it has only to secure, if it can, the defeat of Mr. Randall. He is the stumbling block in its way. If he should be defeated the severance of its ranks would be inevitable and complete. The Republicans could take advantage of the havoc a free trade speaker would create, and with protection made the issue of the campaign there would be no doubt of its success. A President is worth more than a speaker, and the Republican way to secure the first is to sacrfice the latter. The Republican candidate for speaker, should the Democrats now unite, either should be Carlisle or Morrison. If the Republicans can, by giving their votes to a Democratic faction, elect such a free trade Democrat as Carlisle or Morrison, Republican success in 1884, secured by their votes, would justify the refusal to give a mere complimentary vote to a Republican. It is not their place to smother Democratic dissensions by helping Randall, but to inflame them by helping a firebrand like Carlisle or Morrison.

Cheating the State.

The Democrats of the House again failed to secure a quorum this morning,says Saturday's Harrisburg Telegraph, and consequently no session was held. This is not carrying out the lofty pretensions with which they started out. They were going to reform everything, but they have failed to reform themselves to begin with, and are making a worse record for inefficiency and neglect of the public business than the Republicans of any previous House. With these men reform consists of a prospectus, and not in a record. Saturdays are wholly lost, and the Monday night sessions are a farce, so that the time of the Legislature is reduced to four days in the week. Even this small allowance is still further greatly reduced by the disposition on the part of various crude orators to jump to their feet on every question and to talk interminably. It is no wonder, with this state of affairs, that nearly all of the bills introduced are still on the calendars and that so few have passed. From present indications this Legislature bids fair to go into history as the most worthless and impotent body of men that ever assembled on "the hill." But while these Democratic reformers are accomplishing nothing for their constituents or the State, they are not unmindful of their own interests,and regularly pocket their ten dollars a day, session or no session, quorum or no quorum, whether they are at the seat of legislation or engaging in a free ride to the principal city of the commonwealth, or seeing its sights or participating in its pleasures. For so much promise and so little performance the State pays dear, giving one hundred and fifty days' pay for one hundred days' work, or less, and very poor work at that, consisting as it does for the most part of partisan apportionment bills which will never become laws. Gerrymandering and pocketing money not earned from the State are the principal achievements of the average Democratic legislator. This is a sorry outcome for reform, but the people must grin and bear it, as for the time being the men who have wrought it are masters of the situation.

The opinion seems to prevail in the East thatSenator Sherman is the only safe man for the Republicans to nominate for Governor in Ohio. It was the pressure of this same feeling from the outside that turned the scale in Mr. Sherman's favor in filling the Senatorship made vacant by Gen. Garfield's resignation. The nation at large unquestionably recognizes Mr. Sherman's abitity and the long and valuable service he has rendered to the country in places of trust. Undoubtedly he would make a good governor and could be elected, but the country at large has not the same interest in the Governorship of Ohio that it has in Ohio's choice of a Senator or in a member of the Cabinet. Ohio Republicans usually take pretty good care of their State, and if the New York press would devote more space to hunting up a Republican who can lift that 200,000 majority in New York they will render a real service.

The New York Times predicts that during the present month there will be one of the greatest movements of population into Dakota that has ever occurred in the history of any of our territories. For many years it has been quite the fashion in the towns and small cities of Illinois and the contiguous states for young men to go to Dakota in the spring and occupy a claim—generally a "tree claim"—for six months, and then come back in the fall. In this way many hundreds of young men have become possessed of homesteads, and many of them will soon occupy these homesteads permanently. But aside from this, there is a wonderfully large movement of people from many states. The Chicago and Northwestern railroad has become so full of business in carrying household goods that it has been obliged to give orders that no more freight of that sort will be received until additional cars can be procured. From Iowa, Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio, and even from Pennsylvania and New York and the New England states, there are hundreds leaving for the west, a large proportion of whom go to Dakota. Many of the railroads are running special trains for the accommodation of colonists, and the first of May will see a larger population in the Northern half of the territory than there was two years ago in the whole of it.

Miss Frances E. Willard deserves credit for her earnestness in the cause of prohibition, whether her judgment becommended or not. Three months ago she was warring against Bacchus and beer in New England; a month later she was wrestling with rum among the sand hills of Florida; now she is preaching prohibition to the cowboys in Arizona. Her tireless effort in behalf of temperance reform is one of the most commanding features of the prohibitory agitation; and the formidable proportions and dignified aggressiveness which the movement has attained throughout the country are due as much to her as to any other individual. Without the earnest and unselfish effort of women like Miss Willard, the liquor question could never have acquired its present importance as a political issue; it is such as she through whom the friends of the temperance reform must hope for final triumph. The liquor interest would have little to fear if it could eliminate from the present agitation the social influences which women have mustered to its support; they, and they alone, have raised the question to the dignity of a great political issue.

The Star route trial has gone on for four months without any further interruption by sickness in the jury than an ailment of one of the colored jurymen, who complained one day, not without reason, that the "noise" of the counsel and witnesses had given him a misery in the head. A more serious trouble is appearing in the form of a dangerous cancer upon the neck of Juror Hughes, which may force him to leave the court room forever before the trial is finished. If, as it seems, trials of this character cannot be shortened,some steps will have to be taken to lengthen the average human life for the benefit of the jurors.

Jefferson Davis says Providence decreed that slavery should end as it did. Still Mr. Davis felt called upon to lead an armed appeal from the decree through four years of crimson disputation.

Gladstone amused himself by felling a tree at Holmbury, March 27, during a heavy snow storm. He completed the task in half an hour.

General Diaz, when informed of the arrangements for his entertainment in Boston, exclaimed: "Great Heavens, if I only live through it."

GENERAL NOTES.

A New Yorker writes that Denver is far more cosmopolitan than Chicago.

In the list of Irish landowners is Frederick Kennedy, 298,349 acres; value, $4,215.

Until 1882 Russian credit on European bourses always stood higher than that of Austria or Hungary. Since then it has stood lower.

The late Sir George Jessel's income at the English Bar stagnated at some $3,000 a year. As Solicitor-General he earned $115,000 a year.

Prince Bismarck owns some 30,000 acres, but does not derive much income from them. His whole income is probably $70,000 a year, official salary included.

Central Maine has had no rain since last June, although the snow-fall has been heavy Streams are dry, logs stranded, and mills have used coal for months.

The Key West sponge fleet, numbering 70 vessels and 600 men, is out on a cruse. A successful catch of sponge for the fleet brings about $300,000 into that city.

The old capitol of New York cost $107,000, and did service for seventy years. The new one will cost—but that is what the New York taxpayers would like to know.

A salmon whitefish, weighing sixty pounds, was received in Milwaukee a few days ago. It was caught at Escanaba. A six-pound whitefish was taken out of its stomach.

Mr. de Molinari, the eminent French journalist and statist, estimates that the municipal expenditures of Paris equals that of London, although Paris has two-thirds less of population.

At a Hamburg menagerie this month trials were made by German military officers of how camels and dromedaries would serve ambulance purposes. The result is strongly in favor of them.

A British oculist, writing for a London medical journal, says that as culture of intellect increases the human eye grows smaller, and gazelle-eyed sirens and ox-eyed Junos vanish from society.

Almost within sight of the court house at Monticello, Fla., there are three hundred acres in watermelons and ninety acres in potatoes, which crops are expected to realize $20,000 for their producers.

Perhaps it is not generally known, says the New Haven (Conn.) Register, that Hawthorne drudged for Peter Parley, of that city, for a few years, beginning with 1831, writing immortal tales at $3 apiece.

The one unbelieving captain of a fishing smack who sailed from Gloucester, in defiance of Wiggins' prophecies, has returned triumphant, with one of the most profitable catches of fish ever known.

The subscriptions raised in Great Britain after calamities are often astonishingly large. That for the relief of the families of the 167 fishermen who perished in 1882, off Eyemouth, amounts to over $250,000.

One of the best foreign criticisms ever passed upon America was that of Herbert Spencer who said that every American appeared to have been born half an hour late, and to be trying to make up for lost time.

With a population of nearly 5,000,000, and with over 700,000 houses, London finds than an allowance of two policemen to every 1000 inhabitants, or fourteen to every 1000 houses, is sufficient to maintain law and order.

The greatest English provincial paper is the Leeds Mercury. It publishes, besides its daily issue, an enormous weekly edition, which is read all over the north of England, and is infinitely superior to the weekly London Times.

The complete costume of a fashionable lady of the Friendly Islands has lately been presented to the Public Library of Woburn, Mass. It is a square blanket, tatooed with various devices, and made from wood-pulp, or rather bark-pulp.

The population of the Channel Islands and the Isle of Man remains almost stationary. They have ceased to be extraordinarily cheap as compared with many mainland places, and are therefore less resorted to by families of limited means.

The cherry tree which Mr. Gladstone felled in a snow storm during the Easter recess has been presented to the Barslem Liberal Club, whose members propose holding a bazaar in September next, and intend to have a number of articles made from the wood of the tree.

On the Portrush Railway to the Giant's Causeway, in Ireland, a tram-car, driven by electricity, ran ten miles an hour steadily, and, but that the speed is limited by act of Parliament, could easily do twenty-five an hour. Six tons were taken "up an incline of one in thirty-five."

Pat Donnavan looked with much undisguised admiration at a woman whom he saw sitting in a Cincinnati parlor, that she shut the blinds in a huff. Then it was his turn to be angry. He drew a pistol, dashed in the house, fired at her, and got in return a blow with a poker that disabled him.

The courts are about to test the truth of the doctrine of purgatory as held by the Roman Catholics. A man in Australia left $7,000 to be used to deliver his soul from that alleged state of existence, and the executor declines to pay the money without legal proof that it has been really earned.

The Caseys sent the Browns a peace offering in the form of a box of candies at Sacramento. The families had been enemies for years, and the Caseys had been by far the more vindictive of the two; so the Browns were incredulous, and tried some of the sweet tokens of amity on a dog. The brute died of the strychnine that was in it.

DE SKEPTIC AN' DE BIBLE.

BY THE REV. PLATO JOHNSON.

We allers prints de Bible wid a werry large B,
An de reason wy we does it you shall pretty plainly see.
Wile de oder books suggest dat you had better not,
De Bible is de only one dat stops you on de spot.

It tells you you muss do wat's right, an' den you shake your hed
An' make remark: "I don' know how, an' might as well be ded."
But soon you claim dere aint no right, an' to prevent confusion.
You say de werl's a accident, an' morals is delusion.

Wen you's cumulatin' riches, an' in many singler ways,
De Bible aint no book, ob course, for sech as you to praise
Taint no wonder you don't like it, cos it don' like you,
For it 'sists you is a sinner, an' dat wont nebber do.

Dere aint no inspiration, cos it's everlastin' true
Dat de planet can't perjuce sech anoder man as you;
An' if you aint yourself inspired, wy, common sense can see
How perposterous it seems for anoder man to be.

You's so werry mu h advanced, dat you don' believe in nuffin,
And sense you wont obey de law, you take it out in scoffin;
Dere aint no God but Science, an' all science is a guess,
So wenebber dere is sorrow roun, you s in a orfle mess.

So you couldn' be an angle, an' you wouldn' ef you could.
It's a monkey's reperation you muss 'deavor for to nil,
An' you do it jess as easy as you slide down hill.

Wat you want is a religion dat will let you do
Jess exakley as you want to, an' den see you froo;
Froo de gate ob de city dat is garded by de saint,
An' swear dat you is righteous, wen you know dat you aint.

Now listen to me, brudder, for I wouldn' tell no lies;
You is paddlin' 'gainst de current, an' you isn't werry wise.
De religion you don' relish is de one you better mind,
Cos de one you is lookin' for you'll nebber, nebber find.

Although I don' know werry much, I know enuff for dis,
Not to grieve my Holy Master, nor betray him wid a kiss.
De religion ob de Bible is plenty good for me,
An de nebben ob de Bible, I hope sum day to see.

Our Story Teller.

Hessie's Decision.

Pretty Hester Earlscourt was in such a quandary. Only the day before, weary with care and her monotonous labor, she had sighed, "Oh, dear! I wish something would happen!" And now something had happened, with a vengeance.

For four terms she had taught the district school at Oldville. The pay was not large, but enough to support her and her sister, Cordelia—little Cuddy. It was Hester's first school, and she had been so glad to get it—after her father died, and it was discovered that there was really no property for the children.

Hester was young—only eighteen—even now when she began to feel so weary and careworn as a "school-ma'am."

Was her life to go on forever so—long days of "readin,' spellin' an' geogafry," twilight rides in the horse-cars back in town, frugal suppers with Cuddy, and nights that did not seem long enough to rest in—just that, and nothing more? It did seem a little hard, she had been such a dreamer—so hopeful of a bright future.

"But, oh, Cuddy, I'm growing worldwise!" she said, one night, to her mystified little sister.

But that summer the days had been so long and the nights so short, that Hester cried out:

"Oh, dear, I cannot bear it! Anything for a change!"

"I believe you are sick, Hessie," said womanly little Cuddy, who, though ten years old, wasn't much larger than a fairy, and was obliged to stand on a footstool, beside Hessie's old easy-chair, to smooth back the nut-brown hair from the blue-veined temples.

"No, Cuddy; only tired—so tired!"

"But you are!" persisted the child.

"Your temples beat, and your head is hot and eyes heavy. I'll bathe your forehead with ammonia. Oh, it's all gone out of the bottle! I'll run out to the druggist's and get some. May I?"

"Yes, dear!"

Yet Hessie hardly realized what the child said, or where she had gone. She sat alone in the plain, but comfortable, little sitting room, the light fading around her, when there was a knock at the door.

"Come!" she called, without rising, thinking it was the landlady with clean towels.

The door—which stood ajar—was pushed open, and a gentleman entered. He had a pleasant, florid countenance, and very blue eyes, and might have been about thirty-five years old.

"I beg your pardon, Miss Earlscourt, but your landlady told me to come right up."

"Excuse me!" said Hessie, instantly on her feet at recognizing Dr. Pell, one of the school committee. "Pray be seated. I am very glad to see you. The committee have decided about the change of spelling books I presume?"

"N—o, n—o!" said Dr. Pell, with unusual air of hesitation. "My call is not one of business, Miss Earls court."

Hessie may be pardoned for faintly showing her surprise. Dr. Arthur Pell had always seemed to her the busiest and most practical of men. How, then, should she suspect his errand?

"No?" she said, in a half-interrogatory tone, and paused.

"I—" and Dr. Pell paused.

Hessie grew a little pale.

"Your errand is not agreeable, I am afraid, Doctor Pell. Do I not give satisfaction—"

"In the school—to the committee? most assuredly you do."

"Thank you," said Hessie, looking greatly relieved.

"I am very awkward! I am afraid I shall startle you," said Dr. Pell, very gently, after a moment; "but the truth is, I have come today to ask you to be my wife."

Hessie's brown eyes opened, indeed, startled."

"You are not offended?"

"N—o" said Hessie.

"The way of it is this!" said Doctor Pell. "Ten years ago I had a sweet wife, whom I loved very dearly. She died, and left me with one child. My child fell to my mother's care, who has made the only home for me I have had since. But she is very aged, and has often urged me to marry again. However, this I found impossible. It has only been since I have known you, Miss Earlscourt, that marriage again has seemed possible. Pardon me! I know you have little expected this. But you are not offended, though I am no youthful hero. Try to believe me—I think I could make you happy!"

He bent forward and took one of Hessie's small hands gently between his. He looked very good and manly.

"I—I must have time to think. Doctor Pell," faltered Hessie.

"Certainly. I have made my proposals. You shall decide at your leisure. But while you are thinking about it, I would like to see you once in a while, Hessie. Will you let me take you to ride—call upon you of an evening?"

"I have no objection," answered Hessie, quietly, but she felt quite dizzy.

In a few moments Doctor Pell had gone away.

Before she had in the least righted herself there was another knock at the half open door, and Mr. Deslonde walked in.

Mr. Paul Deslonde was the most elegant man of Hessie's acquaintance. He was very handsome; his manner was faultless.

She had always stood a little in awe of him. Judge, then, of her surprise, when, having seated himself in her little sitting room, and chatted easily for half an hour, he very gracefully made a proposal of marriage.

"My father wants me to marry, and being usually arbitrary, I am exceeding y grateful to him that he does not insist upon making a choice for me, but leaves me free to please myself. And this is no sudden fancy. I have known you long, and admiration has ripened into personal esteem. Will you take my proposal into consideration?"

Hessie caught her breath. She looked very pretty with the maidenly reserve mantling her features, her long, dark lashes shading the pure cheek, but these words brought such a bewildering vista of the elegant Deslonde mansion, where a home was offered her, that she was all in a whirl.

"I—I will take your offer into consideration, Mr. Deslonde," she syllabled mechanically.

She felt entirely incapable of saying any more. And then Cuddy came running in with the ammonia bottle, and Mr. Deslonde's conversation turned to generalisms, and then he took his leave.

Nobody will wonder, I think, that Hessie was very much excited. It was not unpleasant excitement. She was flattered, she was encouraged.

Dr. Arthur Pell was very much respected, though he was not rich. Paul Deslonde was very wealthy. Such a proposal from either was very reassuring to a poor girl, whose face was her only fortune.

Not that Hessie was a bit in love with either. How could she be when she had never before dreamed of marrying either of these gentlemen? It was all so very sudden and unexpected!

The days and weeks went on. It was a very pleasant change which had come to Hessie—drives and visits, and flowers sent up to her modest little room.

The new order of things brightened even the tedious school hours. Yet, even when a month had gone by, Hessie had not even approached her decision. She possessed, in her two suitors, an embarrassment of riches.

They were very different. Paul Deslonde was brilliant, captivating, so apt with arts and graces of the highest of social life, she could not help wondering that he should have chosen so unassuming a little maid as herself.

In truth, it was Hessie's peculiar air of docility and modesty which had attracted Mr. Deslonde. He liked to rule.

Dr. Pell was practical, sensible, with an air of reliability about him which spoke loudly for him to Hessie's lonely heart.

She had needed just such a friend so long! Yet, the frank, dark-blue eyes, which were Doctor Pell's only beauty, were often eclipsed in the young girl's mind by Paul Deslonde's elegant form and face.

She tried to be wise; so much depended on this decision of hers—all her life's happiness. Which did she like better? She could not for the life of her tell. Both strove to please her, and were often very agreeable.

She wished, sometimes, that she could see them from a different standpoint than as her lovers. She tried to look into the future, imagining either her husband, but all was so vague!

But at last came the point when Hessie was able to decide.

She was shopping, one leisure Saturday, and went into a stationer's to make some purchases. When the goods she had ordered were put up, she sat down in the back of the store to wait for her car, which would not be due for half an hour. She was glad to rest, too, and entertained herself with a stereoscope.

Suddenly she heard Paul Deslonde's voice. For the first time it struck her that there was something sharp and cutting in it; or, rather, she remembered that she had recognized that quality before without criticising it.

She observed Mr. Deslonde now attentively. He purchased a little steel implement—an ink-eraser. The salesman wrapped and handed it to him. Mr. Deslonde overlooked the proffer.

"Send it up to the house at once. I am going directly home, and shall want to use it," he said, curtly.

"Certainly, certainly!" answered the clerk, with an air of apology, "I thought perhaps—it is so small—"

"I never take my purchases; the delivery is your business."

"Yes—yes, of course, Mr Deslonde."

The gentleman went out, and the salesman muttered something to a fellow clerk about "piecrust."

But another customer came in. It was a broad-shouldered, florid man, with pleasant blue eyes. He seemed to know the salesman, and chatted with him, as he carefully selected a nice stereoscope, with several dozen views and a tasteful carved rack for holding them. When the purchase was complete and paid for, the gentleman held out his hand for the package.

"This is quite a large parcel, Doctor Pell. I will send it up," said the clerk.

"No; I will take it up!" cheerfully.

"Better let me send it up, sir."

"No; the things are for my little Nellie. She has been confined to her room for a fortnight with sickness. I promised them to her, and it would take away the satisfaction not to give them to her myself. Or, that's the way I feel. Perhaps you'll feel so, Charley, when you have a little girl!"

And with a laugh and cheery nod, Doctor Pell went out with the bulky parcel.

A warm color spread over Hessie's sweet face. The tears came into her eyes; and then and there Hester Earlscourt made the decision which influenced her whole after life.

When Doctor Pell came into her little sitting-room that night, with a bunch of English violets, she took them with a radiant smile, held them and inhaled their fragrance all the evening, though a vase of Mr. Deslonde's finer green-house roses stood on the table.

And when, at parting, the grave, tender, middle-aged lover took violets and both little hands gently in his and kissed them, she, put a slender arm about the strong neck.

"Yes, good-by, now; but sometime you will stay with me always; for I love you; you are so good!"

A New Resort.

This is a new resort rapidly building up, there being already 70 houses and 150 inhabitants. It has a post-office, a railroad station, a branch of West Jersey railroad, a newspaper and 10 hotels, 5 of which are now open. Sea Isle City is on Ludlow Beach, one of the finest on the coast, the bathing being safe, and the wide, gentle sloping strand being hard and smooth, and affording delightful drives. The sanitary arrangements are exceptionally perfect, and fulfill what we have often urged, that new places shall keep pace with the progress of science in this important matter. Only one house is allowed to be built on a lot, and no drainage must enter the soil. Garbage is removed every day in summer, and twice a week in winter. The water supply is, for the present, by cisterns. The improvements in 1882 were the erection of fifty cottages and boarding-houses, and numerous improvements are in prospect. We may mention that the place was visited recently by Mr. George M. Roberts, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, in company with Chief Engineer Brown, who were charmed with all they saw and promised many substantial advantages.

As spring is about opening the following classic quotation may be considered seasonable: "Oh, the cow; the excellent cow; escaped from the stable and well-filled mow; defying the law for her bread and meat; roaming at large through every street; hunting, bawling, nosing around, till the iront gate is sure to be found, with its hinges broken and ruined quite by the lovers that hung there Saturday night; it wont stay shut; it wont hang level; in walks the cow and raises the—old nick with the flower bed and other things."

The Cunning Breton Woman.

There was once a good Breton woman whose husband was a laborer. One day, while he was working upon the road all by himself, he found a wallet full of gold. (So poor was he that he had never seen gold before.) He carried the wallet home to his wife, and said:

"I found something pretty to-day—tell you. A leather bag with right handsome buttons in it—enough to keep my breeches trim for ever so long."

"Show me," said the wife.

She opened the valise, and as she was a good deal smarter than her husband, one look satisfied her.

"Go to bed," she said to him; "you are sick."

"No really, I am not a bit sick."

"Yes, you are, I can see it in your face." When her husband was in bed she made him inhale the odor of certain herbs which put him fast asleep; then she put two eggs in his bed, and churned buttermilk.

In the evening he wanted to get up; but she tucked in the covers and made him stay in bed—telling him that he looked too sick to get up.

Next morning when he awoke, he said: "Well, I'll go to work to day; I feel first rate."

As he got out of bed he saw the two eggs his wife had hidden there.

"Well, well!" he said to her; "you were right after all when you said I was sick; see, I laid two eggs!"

Then the laborer looked out of his window, and he saw the whole yard before the house all white.

"What is that in front of the house?" he asked.

"Oh! that!" she said, "why it rained buttermilk yesterday while you were asleep."

The good fellow took his tools and started off to work on the road. He had no sooner got there than a finely dressed gentleman came up and said to him:—

"Here! my good friend, didn't you find something on this road yesterday or the day before?"

"Yes, indeed," he replied; "I found a leather bag with yellow buttons in it."

"Please let me see it."

"Certainly! Come to the house with me—I left it there."

When he and the gentleman got to the house he said to his wife:—

"Wife, show this gentleman the yellow bag I brought you yesterday."

"You never brought me anything."

"Yes I did. A leather bag."

"A leather bag! When did you bring me a leather bag, I would like to know?"

Why, don't you remember the day I laid the two eggs and it rained buttermilk?"

"You can see for yourself, sir, that he is mad," said the good woman, turning to the gentleman.

And the gentleman really thought that the laborer was an idiot, and the cunning woman kept the wallet.

Long Talks by Wire.

Philadelphia Times.

Henry Benson, of this city, who is connected with telegraphic and telephonic ventures, discountenances the idea of telephones between distant cities. He thinks that they are in nowise practicable and that companies based on them will never have much business. "In the first place," he said yesterday, "the experiments now being made along hundreds of miles of wire are by no means novel. They were successful years ago and are now being repeated for effect and to advertise the companies. The system is utterly inadequate to commercial purposes. All transactions in the world of commerce or finance have to be recorded. The telegraph provides for this, the telephone does not. A merchant will not sell goods on the strength of mere sound. He would be foolish were he to do so in the absence of all record of the sale and consequently of responsibility. The telephone represents honor, but that is all; it is not a record fit for commercial purposes. The use of the telephone or of the telegraph for other than business purposes would not as much as defray wire maintenance and service. We have a wire stretched as far as Trenton, but no farther. Why? Because people living on the other side of Trenton have no use for Philadelphia and don't care to telephone us. Telephone wires can never run close to telegraphic wires, as the inductions of the latter are apt to cause confusion in the sounds transmitted. This might be temporarily avoided, but to prevent the two sets of wires entering a town from coming into contact or crossing, which will interfere with the working of both, is expensive and in many cases next to impossible."

While the guards are being doubled around the palace of the Sultan, and the most experienced safe-builders are employed in constructing a bed chamber of chilled iron for the Czar that cannot be opened without a knowledge of the combination, the gratifying news comes that the Governor's Guard of Ohio is to be disbanded. How tranquil and secure is the life of an American potentate beside that of foreign rulers!

A Movement Among the Browns.

At a wedding ceremony in Huntingdon recently the groom was John Brown, the bride Lizzie Brown, the minister was Rev. Brown, the best man Henry Brown, and the ceremony came off at the house of Burgess Brown. The local paper, noticing the event, said it was certainly "done up Brown."

Talmage on Peter Cooper.

From N. Y. Sun's Report of Talmage's sermon.

"Peter Cooper's life warns us that the best way to settle the quarrels between the labor and the capital is Peter Cooper's way. There are two ways in which the quarrel can be settled. One is by the violent subjugation of the laboring classes. The other is the martyrdom of the rich people. This is fast getting to be an age of dynamite. Dynamite in the Kremlin, dynamite in the Parliament, dynamite in Ireland, dynamite in England, dynamite in Germany, dynamite in Russia, dynamite in America. The remedy for all this is Cooperism. There was no dynamite under Cooper Institute. Nobody thought of putting dynamite under Peter Cooper's house. Nobody envied him his carriage. When opulent men of all lands shall stretch out to the laboring classes and suffering classes a generous hand like that of Peter Cooper, it will terminate the age of dynamite. May the spirit of Peter Cooper come down upon our bank stock, upon Government securities, upon railroad companies, upon the business men of America.

"Peter Cooper has also impressed us with a new style of monumental and epitaphal commemoration. Cooper Institute is his monument in preference to catafalque or mausoleum. Long after Sir Walter Scott's Old Mortality shall have worn out his chisel in reviving the inscriptions on old buttons, the name of this man who helped others will be fadeless in men's memories. He built his monument in the encouragement of philanthropy. The liberal hand is closed; the beaming eye is shut; the world-encompassing heart is still. When he was at my house I felt that I was entertaining a king. But the king is dead. The largest volume of human life, we see, has its last chapter, its last page, its last word. What are ninety-two years of earthly existence compared with 500,000,000 years of ages past. Whatever peculiarity of religious belief a man may have, if he will spend a life like that I shall call him a Christian. The grandest philanthropist was Christ. In the shadow of Peter Cooper's grave to day I implore God for the sanctification of all the wealth of the country. We are coming on an age of prosperity such as was never imagined. The South has gone out of politics and gone into business. Let us see that our new opportunities are improved by the example of Peter Cooper."

The Fresh Air Fallacy.

Fifty years ago few people knew much about ventilation, or indeed believed much in its importance; and a crusade in favor of "fresh air" was fought by the sanitarians. Now the tide runs the other way, and all the dull people have learned the phrase "fresh air," and insist on having what they call "fresh air" at any cost, and without regard to times and places. Two men will come into the spacious parlor of a club; the air, though warm, is much purer, and cooler by five degrees, than the furnace blast of the streets that they have left. The incomers are entirely comfortable until one of them notices that the windows are shut. Then they remember the formula "fresh air;" the windows are ordered open; in comes the heated gust from without, laden with the animal refuse that forms the chief ingredient of the dust in our large cities. These intelligent gentlemen draw near the open window; they inhale the "winged odors" of the streets, they murmur their formula, "A little fresh air;" they have cleared their consciences, and are happy. And in travelling, what do we not suffer from this ignorant conception of "fresh air!" We have all seen the lady who must have the window open in the railway carriage; in the summer she breathes the railway sparks and cinders, and she catches a severe cold on every winter journey; nothing short of pneumonia will convince her narrow ignorance that there are other things to think about in travelling than what she calls "fresh air."—T. M. Coan, in Harper's Magazine for May.

The Coming Craze.

Speaking of art reminds me of a talk the other day of a representative of a foreign house that makes a specialty of household art novelties.

"What is the latest craze?" I inquired.

"Oh, brass and old iron. In a year this country will be wild over old iron and brass decorations for the home. The factories of Germany, France, and Switzerland are now making up these things, which will begin to pour in about next fall."

"What are they?"

"Everything you can think of. Hat racks made of muskets; centre tables with the legs made of swords; old guns cut down for table legs; card receivers, cabinets, brackets and mantel ornaments to look as if they were made of old implements of war. Old iron and brass is to be the next rage in this line."

He came home late the other night, and his wife woke up and found him with a burning match trying to light the cold water tap over the marble basin in his dressing room. "James," she said, "that is not the gas burner." "I know it now, my love," he replied, unsteadily; "fact is, I've been overworked, and that's the reason I made the mistake." "Yes, you look as if you'd been lifting a good deal," she quietly answered as she returned to her pillow.

An Invitation.

When one partakes of something very delightful it is a narrow heart that will not wish to share it with others. On Sunday, the 8th, a free and very rich feast was enjoyed by many, but it was a drawback to the pleasure that the number was small compared with those who might have been there if they had wished.

To drop the figure. The Gospel of Jesus Christ is preached most cheerfully and faithfully in our churches, the highest and deepest wants and cravings of the nature are met and satisfied, and those who enjoy it know that it is only the beginning—they have a joyful hope of an unfading inheritance that is laid up for them. But it is a constant grief that so many know nothing of all this. They do not come to hear of it. Their voices do not join with those who sing God's praises, and they are wandering away on the cold, dark mountains far from their Father's house.

Our church doors stand open. You are welcome to come. You will hear the truth plainly preached. We invite you to come, and you may find a joy you never dreamed of or imagined.

BELLEFONTE.

—Watermen, or raftsmen, are passing through Bellefonte by the hundred and sometimes stop in town for a few hours to take a drink. They are a rough looking crowd when on the way up or down the river, but many of them are the most respectable and orderly members of the community when at home. At certain places along the river their annual visits are looked forward to with apprehension by the community. Their work, however, is almost wholly beneficial, and without them the lumber districts would be worthless.

—The absurd suggestion that one of the lines of railroad building in this vicinity will run up High street and directly through the Court House is not considered reliable. The Court House ring would, of course, be pleased at the opportunity of flirting with all the pretty girls in the train, but even that would not be sufficient recompense for the change in their present mode of existence and the quickened life it would infuse into their movements. No railroad time for them, thank you.

—The five figures, which look so much like finely arrayed gentlemen and which occupy a prominent position in front of Guggenheimer's store, are quite embarrassing to ladies who pass that way. Their resemblance to experienced "mashers" is so exact that the girls sometimes begin a flirtation with them.

To Physicians.

We do not find fault, reproach or condemn the practice of any regular physician—this is not our mission—but we do claim if he were to add Peruna to his prescriptions as directed in our book on the "Ills of Life" (and furnished gratuitously by all druggists) he would cure all his patients.

"OSWEGO, Potter County, Pa.

DR. HARTMAN—Dear Sir: The small ulcers are all healed, and the two large ones are not more than half as large as they were. I am feeling quite well. The people say your Peruna and Manalin are doing a miracle. I do not take nearly so much opium as I did before. MRS. ELLEN MAYNARD."

Those Terrible Children.

Miss Lilli visits a lady whose child is screaming at the top of its voice.

"What is the matter?" asked the little girl.

"Oh, nothing," answered the lady; "he is cutting his teeth."

"He is very silly indeed to give himself so much trouble," responds little Lilli; "see, my dear mother, she doesn't cry; it is the dentist who cuts her teeth."—Paris Figaro.

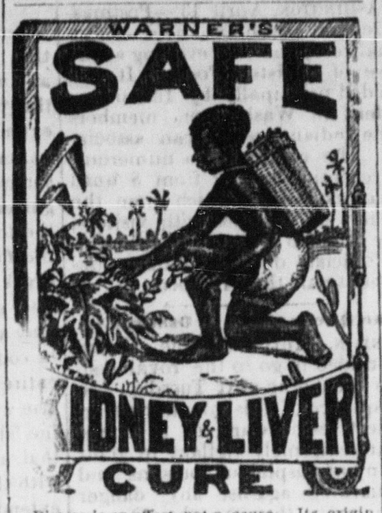
Medical.



Disease is an effect, not a cause. Its origin is within; its manifestations are without. Hence, to cure the disease the Cause must be removed, and in no other way can a cure be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY AND LIVER CURE is established on just principles. It realizes that of all diseases arise from deranged kidneys and liver, and it strikes at once at the root of the difficulty. The elements of which it is composed act directly upon these great organs, both as a food and restorer, and by placing them in a healthy condition, drive disease and pain from the system.

For the innumerable troubles caused by unhealthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; for the distressing Disorders of Women; for Malaria, and for physical derangements generally, this great remedy has no equal. Beware of imposters, imitations and concoctions said to be just as good.

OF ANOTHER AGE.

Gradually Supplanted by a Better Article, Certain Old Things are Done Away.

In the general reception room of the Western Union Telegraph building on Broadway, New York, are exhibited the coarse crude and clumsy instruments of the infancy of the telegraph. They are only relics now. More perfect machinery has superseded them.

Years ago what is now styled the old-fashioned porous plaster did some good service. There was then nothing better of the kind. Now all that is changed. Science and study have gone deeper into the secrets of medicine and produced BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, which embodies all the excellencies thus far possible in an external remedy. The old plasters were slow—the Capcine is rapid; they were uncertain—the Capcine is sure. Cheaper articles bear similar names. Be careful, therefore, that some thrifty druggist does not deceive you. In the centre of the genuine is cut the word CAPCINE. Price 25 cents.

A Tragedy near Chambersburg.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., April 12.—Two tramps, whose names are supposed to be Schoot and Bartor, called at the farm house of David Long, residing about a mile south of Chambersburg, about 4 o'clock this afternoon and demanded something to eat. As they were both intoxicated Mr. Long refused to give them anything. Schoot, with an oath, declared he would have it if he had to fight for it and pushed into the kitchen. After several unsuccessful efforts to get Schoot out of the room Long went into an adjoining room and procured a revolver, when on returning to the kitchen Schoot drew his coat and struck several times at Long. Long told him to leave or he would shoot, but Schoot persisted in, as he said, fighting it out. Mr. Long then fired the first shot, striking Barton, who was standing on the porch, in the arm. Long then fired the second shot, it taking effect in Schoot's left side and passing into the abdominal cavity. Schoot ran to the porch and fell and Barton fled. Word was sent to town for officers, who arrested Barton and brought him and Schoot to town, where medical aid was rendered. Barton has been sent to jail for treatment and Schoot is lying in a precarious condition at a boarding-house. There are no hopes of his recovery and his death is expected at any time. The shirt which Schoot wears bears the name of "H. Frantz." He was unable to give his name, and the names which we give were received from a fellow tramp who had been with them to-day. Mr. Long was arrested and is in jail. His consel will bring him into court to-morrow on a writ of habeas corpus.

Joe Brady Convicted.

DUBLIN, April 13.—The trial of Joe Brady, one of the men arrested for complicity in the Phoenix Park murder, was concluded to-day.

DUBLIN, April 13.—When the Judge asked Brady if he had anything to say why the sentence of death should not be pronounced he responded in a loud, clear and firm voice: "I am not guilty of the charge which the informers have sworn on me. These men would swear away the life of any one save their own." He was then sentenced to be hanged on May 14. After sentence had been pronounced Brady, who had recovered his composure, again protested his innocence. He was then hurried from the court room. The announcement of the verdict was received with marks of the utmost disfavor and condemnation by the crowds in the street.

An Arkansas Tornado.

OSARK, April 14.—About one o'clock this morning a disastrous tornado struck White Oak Station, on the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad, ten miles west of here. The mountains, which before the storm were covered with trees, now show none standing, oaks being snapped like pipe stems. Afterwards came hail, which lasted till the ground was covered with ice: F. H. Pizer, Postmaster, lost his store and residence and probably most of the mail. Three hundred dollars in currency were scattered by the winds, eighty-nine dollars being found. Pizer was seriously injured. All the buildings in the town were leveled. The storm averaged three miles in width. The telegraph wire was blown down for nearly four miles and no fences can be seen anywhere.

Kelley Banqueted.

PHILADELPHIA April 12.—The Hon. Wm. D. Kelley, chairman of the ways and means committee of the last congress, was the recipient of a banquet this evening at the Union League house. All the prominent manufacturers of the city and several of the most prominent of the state were present. Mr. Kelley and others made addresses.

Flying from Flames.

CRISFIELD, Md., April 14.—At one o'clock this morning fire broke out in the tenement house owned by John Sterling situated on the corner of Goodsell's alley and Main street and had gained considerable headway before the sleeping inhabitants were aroused. It spread to a building occupied by Field Hastings as a sail-loft and in half an hour the entire block bounded by Main street, the river, Broad street and Hern street was in flames. The buildings, being all frame structures, furnished quick fuel for the flames, and the occupants of sixteen buildings were compelled to fly from their beds in short order. The town fire company worked with great energy, but was unable to save any of the buildings. The wind was fortunately blowing from the north and towards the river, thus retarding the progress of the flames, which would otherwise have spread to the upper portion of the town, when the whole place would have been laid in ashes.

A singular fact in connection with the fire is that a conflagration took place in Crisfield one year ago, lacking two days, on which occasion eighteen houses, constituting the greater portion of the business centre, were swept away, causing a loss of $100,000. The fire took place on April 16, 1882, and was the work of an incendiary. The present fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin. The little town is greatly excited over the matter, as very few of the families have escaped without loss. Most of the stores burned face on Main street only one block distant from the scene of the fire last year. A rigid investigation of the cause is being made by a committee of citizens and if, as suspected, the flames were started by some drunken man the culprit, if captured, will have every chance of being summarily hanged.

A Postmaster's Crime.

PHILADELPHIA, April 13.—Abraham O. Hackman, postmaster at Pipersville, Bucks county, was yesterday brought to this city and arraigned before United States Commissioner Phillips on the charge of having used cancelled stamps, an offense which is punishable by imprisonment from one to three years. Evidence was offered to the effect that many of the letters from Pipersville are forwarded to Doylestown, where they are distributed. Postmaster Niller, of the latter place, on February 2, detected four refused stamps, and after that kept a record. Hardly a day passed without one improperly stamped letter arriving from Pipersville. Monday last Postal Inspector Barrett had an interview with Hackman, and, exhibiting four of the letters, asked the postmaster where the persons who had written the letters lived. The answer was that they had all removed from the village. Mr. Barrett, however, found all the writers except one residing in the town, and the fourth was seen in this city. All declared that they had deposited the letters with the postmaster, where they had given the money for postage. Several of the stamps bore the cancellation marks of the Philadelphia postoffice, whereas the defendant used a pen for cancellation. Hackman was held in $2,500 bail.

Trouble at Gettysburg.

GETTYSBURG, April 13.—A few nights since a band of Pennsylvania college students, armed with various weapons, proceeded to the preparatory department for the purpose of "kidnapping" a new boy who had just arrived from Baltimore. They succeeded in reaching his room without serious difficulty, but about the time they had their victim strongly bound, both hand and foot, the principal and tutors of the department appeared upon the scene and a fight ensued. Pistols were fired by the students and two of the tutors narrowly escaped being shot, the bullets just grazing their ears. Finally, to escape detection, the hazers left their bound prisoner, leaped from the window, which was on the second story, and fled. The faculty are much excited, and seem determined to find out and punish the offenders. They have been in session almost ever since the difficulty occurred. Three of the offenders have been brought to trial. The feeling between the faculty and students is strong, and more trouble is anticipated.

Dull Trade in Iron.

READING, April 12.—The Reading iron works will hereafter run only half time. The pipe mill has been closed until Monday, after which time operations will be limited to 3 days a week. Other departments will run only day shifts. The rolling and sheet mills will be closed indefinitely on Monday thus throwing between four and five hundred men out of employment. The cause of this is said to be dullness of trade and lack of orders.

The President's Movements.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 13.—The president reached Sanford to-day on his return trip and will take the steamer to night for Tocoi, reaching there at 8 a. m. to morrow and leaving at one o'clock for St. Augustine by rail. He will probably stay a day or two in St. Augustine but his plans are not definitely settled yet.

Will Amend the Sunday Law.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 11.—The conference committees of both houses of the legislature will report in favor of amending the Sunday laws so as to allow the sale of fruit, manufactured tobacco, newspapers, drugs and surgical applicances on Sundays.

The President's Trip.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., April 14.—The President has returned from the wilds and his course will now be slowly homeward. Although he has been here only a few hours, the quaint beauty of this old town has already so captivated him that head quarters are likely to be retained here during the few days remaining to him in Florida. Yesterday was spent quietly at Sanford. The hotel kept open specially for the party, was not closed to visitors and persons who had come up from Jacksonville on a river trip, as well as residents of the town, roamed freely through the halls. In the afternoon the President greeted visitors informally and probably one hundred persons spoke with him. Among them was Corporal Vaughan, who attained his rank in the Indian war of 1837, after which he made his home at Sanford. The President also met persons bearing his wife's name, whom he interested by endeavoring to trace their pedigree to discover relationship.

The Irish Conspirators.

LONDON, April 14.—The formal identification by Carey during his examination in the case of Joe Brady of Tynan's photograph as a picture of the man known as "Number One" has caused the government to take active steps to secure Tynan's arrest. Four detectives are said to have gone in pursuit of him.

DUBLIN, April 14.—The trial of Daniel Curley, another of the men charged with the Phœnix Park murders, will begin here on Monday.

Of the twenty-two persons whom the prosecution will call on the trial of Curley, there are new witnesses, who will testify that they saw the accused in Phœnix Park on the day of the murder. The counsel of the Crown calculate that the trial of the other prisoners will take about a fortnight. It is expected that three of the Phœnix Park murderers will plead guilty.

LIMERICK, April 14.—Six more men have been taken into custody here on the charge of conspiracy to murder. The arrests were made in consequence of disclosures by a man who has turned informer.

Another Sensation Spoiled.

BOSTON, April 13.—A small street bomb was exploded by a passing carriage in front of the postoffice this morning, causing some commotion but no damage. The incident caused some talk in connection with the Marquis of Lorne's arrival. Lorne arrived at 8.30. He would not take a conveyance to the hotel, but, accompanied by the English consul and members of his party, followed closely by a detective, walked leisurely to the hotel.

LATER.—A careful examination of the supposed infernal machine that exploded near the postoffice to-day shows that it was nothing more than an ordinary railroad torpedo used to denote that a slow-running train is ahead of the train that explodes it. It was probably dropped by accident.

Strikers Using Violence.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 13.—The trouble between the strikers and non-union men at the rolling mills yesterday assumed the dimensions of a riot. This afternoon four of the so-called "scabs," who had the temerity to stray away from their companions, were assaulted by about twenty-four of the strikers and seriously maltreated. One was thrown from the railroad bridge into the Sangamon river. It is not known to-night whether he was drowned or managed to escape. Another was captured and taken into the woods and is still missing. The other two were very badly beaten. As the non-union men were leaving the mill last night they were fired upon by the strikers. One man was killed and two others slightly wounded. No arrests have yet been made.

To Be Received at Boston.

BOSTON, April 12.—The Marquis of Lorne will arrive in this city to-morrow. In view of the recent developments in connection with dynamite conspirators he has notified the British consul here of his coming. The latter has asked the police authorities to take proper precautions against any violence being offered to the vice regal party. Superintendent Adams will provide proper police protection an detail detectives for the occasion. It is understood that the party will stay at the hotel Brunswick. Mayor Palmer has not been officially notified of their coming and has made no arrangements for a reception by the city. It is understood that the visit is for the purpose of meeting friends who are expected on the English steamer due here on Saturday.

A Law Declared Void.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 12.—The supreme court holds that the revenue law passed by the late legislature is void, because of the omission from the bill as enrolled and signed of certain words in the bill when passed. This puts the state on the old revenue law unless the government calls an extra session of the legislature. The new law reduced the tax to five and a half mills.

The Old Story.

BOSTON, April 13.—The pigeon contest this afternoon between Dr. Carver and Captain Bogardus was won by the former. The weather was bad and the wind interfered. A spent shot from Bogardus' gun knocked a boy off a fence but did not seriously injure him. Bogardus claimed he was unnerved by the accident. Score—Carver, 93; Bogardus, 92.

Held a Reception.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—Postmaster General Greshman held an informal reception this evening at the house of Minister Foster. It was attended principally by Indianians resident in Washington, members of the Indiana republican association. The callers were numerous, the reception lasting from 8 until 10 o'clock, during which time the parlors were thronged with visitors, many of them ladies. All the principal officials of the postoffice department paid their respects.

The Queen going to Osborne.

LONDON, April 14.—The Queen has decided to go to the royal residence at Osborne next Tuesday. In consequence of this intention several detectives have arrived at Cowes and are extremely vigilant in their scrutiny of suspicious persons and is guarding against any danger which may threaten the Queen. They have arrested several persons, but the prisoners in all cases have proved that they were innocent of any disloyal intention.

High Water in Quebec.

SOREL, Quebec, April 13.—Ice in the river Richelieu, opposite and above the town, is breaking up. Reports from the upper parts of the river say the water has risen four feet since yesterday. Water on the Yamaska river is extremely high. The Southeastern bridge is in a precarious condition. Trains have stopped running over it. The mail carrier reports crossing on the St. Lawrence is very unsafe. Grave apprehension is felt for the safety of the fleet in the harbor.

—Some sticking plaster is very adhesive. But patrons of Harry Teats & Co.'s store become truer and more faithful friends of the firm and exhibit better sticking qualities than any sticking plaster.

—This is one of the Philadelphia Chronicle fashion notes: "It is too early yet to say what style parasol will be fashionable, but, as usual, they will be worn just high enough to take out a man's eye."

—The Evangelical congregation of Milesburg are making preparations to erect a neat church edifice, and have already commenced operations upon it. The church is prospering under the pastorate of Rev. Morris.

—We have received from Harry Chaapel, the well-known Florist of Williamsport, Pa., a copy of his Annual Floral Catalogue of Flowers, Plants and Seeds. The work is elegantly printed and illustrated, contains much information of value to those interested in the culture of Flowers, Vegetables, etc. It will be sent free to all on application to Mr. Harry Chaapel, at Williamsport, Pa.

—During the past winter Mr. E. J. Warner, of Nittany, taught school No. 3, known as "Sellers," located in Patton township, Lycoming county, forty miles from his home. This distance he walked each way every week, during five months, including an extra trip occasionally, 1070 miles. This too, during cold, disagreeable weather. The above statements from the Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin are so difficult to believe that we would be pleased to hear from Mr. W. in explanation.

The "Susquehanna and Allegheny" Railroad.

Among the new lines of railroad that will pass through this county and which are now being located is the "Susquehanna and Allegheny," extending from Milton on the Susquehanna river, to Punxsutawney, Jefferson county. The several corps of engineers are traversing the route, and the location of that part of it from the foot of the mountains at Marsh Creek, to the south fork of White Deer creek, covering Bald Eagle, Nittany and Sugar Valleys, will probably be completed in two months and the entire route within three months. The work of building will begin in the fall. The L. H. Journal indicates that, after connecting at West Milton with the Reading road, the line will extend west to White Deer Mills, and White Deer Furnace, across the mountains into Sugar Valley; passing Booneville, Tylersville and Logansville; thence to Nittany Valley; thence to Washington Furnace, Clintondale, Cedar Springs, Mill Hall, Eagleville and Moshannon; across the Moshannon to Brown's Run into Clearfield county, passing DuBois and on to Punxsutawney.

Grand Opening of Michael Levi & Co.'s Keystone One-Price Clothing House.

This elegant new establishment was opened to the public on Wednesday, the 11th inst., and attracted the attention of the people in town and throughout the county. When the store was illuminated at night the effect was grand and unprecedented in Bellefonte. The store is filled with a large and elegant assortment of clothing which reaches from end to end and from floor to ceiling of the store room—the one on Allegheny street, formerly occupied by Wagner & Son. There is also an immense and very choice line of gent's furnishing goods. This establishment claims to be the only clothing house in this place that marks all goods in plain figures and has one invariable price. They profess to be able to suit and fit anybody with their extensive line of Rochester, Boston and Buffalo clothing. Lean, fat, short and and tall men are invited to call and be convinced. The large advertisement of the firm will be found elsewhere. Goods certainly seem to be surprisingly cheap.

A Sad Occurrence in Liberty Township.

The death of Mrs. William McKean, of Liberty township, occurred on Friday last and she was buried on Sunday. Her death was the result of a sad chain of circumstances. Owing to domestic infelicity, she had become quite melancholy, and doubtless reason was temporarily dethroned. About two weeks ago another event occurred to agitate her mind, and in a fit of despair, we are informed, she put coal oil upon her clothing and set fire to them. The members of her family endeavored to extinguish the flames but were unable to do so before severe injuries were inflicted which resulted in her death. Five or six children survive to lament the sad event.

—Mine cave-ins are among the most frequent sources of death and destruction; therefore go to Sechler's store for groceries.

—The Italians on the Buffalo Run railroad are making rapid progress. Their number is to be increased this week. They have been quite peaceful during the past few days. It is said that their mode of existence is so extremely frugal that they are of little if any benefit in an agricultural or trading community as consumers. Their articles of diet consist of cake made in the ordinary manner from flour with beer to drink.

—The census reports, which are very compendious, indicate that Harry Green's cigars are increasing in favor.

—Nellie, a little daughter of Mr. Jacob Valentine, was so unfortunate as to fall and injure herself quite severely while at play on Wednesday morning, the 11th instant, in the residence of Mr. Edmund Blanchard. She was unconscious for some time, but as no bones are broken it is thought that the consequences will not be serious.

—We hope that the conflagration in Maine which caused the destruction of so much ice will not increase the price of ice cream next summer. But even if it does the people of Centre county have a constant source of satisfaction in the fact that groceries can be purchased as cheap as ever at Sechler's store.

—It is time for our green grocers to have a supply of onions, lettuce, asparagus, etc. The markets all around Bellefonte are supplied with these articles.

—Walk in to Harry Teats & Co.'s store. It will not require much money to purchase all the groceries you want.

EDITOR'S TABLE.

☞The Illustrated World, a pictorial journal published by James Elverson, Philadelphia, is on our table and is a decidedly ornamental and acceptable addition. It is a journal of entertainment and instruction suited to the needs and tastes of young and old. The serial and short stories and the numerous illustrations exhibit unmistaken ability in its editorial management. We shall be glad to welcome it again and our readers would also find it a delightful visitor in their homes. Terms, $3 per year in advance. THREE PAINFUL ACCIDENTS.

Business Booms and Harrowing Happenings in Stormstown and Vicinity.

STORMSTOWN, April 11, 1883.

Winter with its snow and ice has disappeared and we are now in the full enjoyment of fine Spring weather. Agricultural work is being pushed forward with more than ordinary rapidity. In all directions the plow boy may be seen following the plow and turning up the dark, rich soil.

Other enterprises occupy much of the attention of the people in this vicinity. Ore operations are increasing in magnitude and importance. Your excellent fellow citizen, Mr. Daniel Rhoads, has important ore interests hereabouts and, it is rumored, will resume operations in a few days.

Mr. J. Pierpont's works have been operated so rapidly as to require an average of eleven hours work each day on the part of the employes. The demand for the excellent ore under his control is the cause of this energetic work.

Several accidents have recently occurred at Tow Hill ore bank, three of which are of sufficient importance to lay before your readers. Johnny Miller was caught between two cars, several days ago, and his lower limbs quite seriously injured. He was conveyed to his home and Doctor Kline summoned, giving him the proper surgical attention. William Repard was caught in about the same way, the next day, and the results were somewhat similar, his legs being squeezed and cut in a way which will confine him to the house for some time.

To-day (Wednesday) a worse accident occurred, a boy named George Everhart being the victim. While he was riding the mule into the bank for the purpose of hauling the cars to and from the steam shovel, or digger, he was thrown from the animal's back, falling under the car, which passed over his head. His face and head were fearfully lacerated and all of his front teeth knocked out. It is not probable that he will survive his injuries very long as it is believed that his skull is fractured.

The boy Everhart, is making his home with Christ Stevens, who is the same man that fell from the high trestle last fall, by means of which one of his arms was broken and he was otherwise severely injured. George Everhart is an orphan boy.

We are sorry to record the sudden death of little Lawrence Myers, only child of George and Amanda Myers, of this place, the sad event occurring on Sunday, the 8th. The little fellow is only 1 year, 3 months and 25 days old. On the day mentioned he had been placed on the floor among his play things apparently in good health About 10 o'clock in the morning he was seized with spasms. He grew constantly worse until 5 o'clock p. m., when his spirit returned again to the God who gave it. M.

Something New Again.

The well-known "Bee Hive" dry goods stores keep abreast of the times in a truly marvelous manner. Reference to their advertisement in the usual place will show that they have again made extraordinary reductions in the prices of their goods which will prevail during the opening only. The goods on which these reductions are made are among the most seasonable fabrics, just the sort needed at this time of year. The announcement will be interesting to ladies and should be read by all of them. How these elegant goods can be sold so low is, of course, difficult to understand, but nevertheless, those who visit the store will find it an actual fact.

Building and Loan Association.

The preparatory efforts toward the organization of a Building and Loan Association are now in progress. A meeting of the business men of Bellefonte will be called to assemble in the Logan Hose House on Saturday evening, April 21, for that purpose. The gathering, we believe, will only be for the purpose of getting the sentiment of the business men on the expediency of such an organization and discovering how much stock will probably be taken. We believe such associations should exist in every town and hope that the efforts to organize may be successful.

—The Marquis of Lorne is described as a very handsome man—one of the most perfect specimens of blonde beauty. He writes poetry. If, perchance, he gets a taste of the groceries sold by Sechler in the Bush House block, he will be induced to make Bellefonte his permanent place of residence.

—This is excellent weather for the Centre County Banking Company to complete that bit of pavement on the Spring street side of the building which is not only an eye-sore but also a foot-sore to the people who travel that way.

The "Masher" and the "Flirt."

The editor of an exchange looks forth from the latticed window of his elegant sanctum santorium and thus meditates: "Now that the spring trade is opening the festive drummer is on the war path more numerous than ever. It is astonishing how much flirtation there is between young girls and this class of men going on here every day and every evening. Very few parents wish their daughters to be considered fast and yet they allow them so much latitude in the freedom of the streets, that many of them have recklessly earned that appellation. The masher while away from home has no reputation to lose, he is simply one of a class and girls are more or less to blame for his presence on the streets. Brazen as a male flirt is, he will rarely speak to a young girl, unless she by her boldness of manner invites him to. But it is said to the credit of woman that it is rarely that one of maturer years will indulge in this species of frolic. A school girl of fifteen or sixteen years foolishly imagines that an assumption of boldness of manner denotes a dashing independence."

—The latest novelty at an unheard of sacrifice. Changeable, Ottoman velvets, in all shades, at 95 cts. per yard—cost $1.80 to import—at the Bee Hive one price stores. This bargain can positively never be duplicated. 15 10tf

—We cannot understand how such unparalleled bargains can be given at the "Bee Hive" as are advertised, so we will just go to see how true it is.

Fragments of Philipsburg News.

Messrs. Hoover, Hughes & Co., who have the contract for erecting the new depot building for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at Johnstown, began work on it last week.

A one hundred horse-power engine and boiler has been ordered by the Philipsburg Electric Light and Power Company to be used in connection with the electric light apparatus.

J. Hockley, Esq., formerly of Muncy, Pa., has located at Philipsburg to practice law.

CAST SCRAP IRON WANTED.—Will pay cash or exchange for hardware at H. K. Hicks' hardware and stove store. dawtf

—Our townsman, Mr. D. M. Butts, has in his possession the surveys of the proposed Atlantic & Great Western railroad, giving the grades of the route through Centre county. It will will no doubt be a surprise to many to learn that the grade over the Alleghenies is but 63 feet to the mile, entering from Dick's Run. A great deal of interesting information can be obtained from a study of the survey, and Mr. Butts will be pleased to exhibit it to those who feel interested in the matter.

—Have you been to the bargain sale at the Bee Hive? If not, get there as soon as you can. 15-10tf

Contract Awarded.

The contract for erecting the superstructure of the new county bridge across Spring creek on High street in this borough has been awarded to Addison Randall, representing the Columbia Bridge Company at Dayton, Ohio. The contract price is $64 per linear foot

It may also be stated in this connection that the specifications for the abutments have been received and bids for their erection are now in order.

The peculiar action on the kidneys and urinary organs of asparagus is frequently noticed during the season. Prof. Benson recently proved in the case of the Emperor William and others that in combination with malt and quinine it is an absolute specific for diseases of the liver, kidneys and urinary organs. His method has been adopted by the Malt Bitters Company, and this great German food is now composed of malt, hops, quinine bark and asparagus.—Medical Times.

Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint.

Is it not worth the small price of 75 cents to free yourself of every symptom of these distressing complaints? If you think so, call at our store and get a bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. Every bottle has a printed guarantee on it, use accordingly and if it does you no good it will cost you nothing. Sold by John Harris.

Oh, What a Cough!

Will you heed the warning? The signal, perhaps, of the sure approach of that more terrible disease, consumption. Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 50 cents to run the risk and do nothing for it. We know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a million bottles were sold the past year. It relieves Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. For lame back, side or chest use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. For sale by John Harris.

THE LATEST NEWS.

Fighting the Flames.

WESTMINSTER, Md., April 10.—The most disastrous fire ever known here occurred last night, originating in Jacob Thompson's livery stable, in which Bob Thompson and Aaron Shaffer, employes, were burned to death; also thirty horses and sixteen dwellings and stores were burned, including the Lutheran church. The fire cleared the whole square from Bend to Main street and up Carrol. The fire started at 11 30 last night and was not got under control until 3 this morning.

Four colored men, named John Clark, Charles Warfield, Robert Goodwin and Hannon Dorsey, have been arrested for having set fire to the stable and will have a hearing to-morrow morning. It is said that while engaged in a game of cards they set the place on fire, whether accidental or otherwise is not known. The belief is gaining ground that it was intentional as otherwise they could easily have extinguished it. The coroner's jury to-night, inquiring into the cause of the death of Thompson and Shaffer, rendered a verdict that the stable was fired through gross negligence and reckless disregard of life and property by the parties under arrest.

Owing to open threats of lynching the jail is guarded to-night by twenty-two men who are well armed. Quiet and order prevail at present, but there is a deep feeling of indignation against the men who caused such destruction of property and loss of life.

A Century-old Plaintiff.

READING, April 10.—Baltzer Gehr, who was 101 years old on April 3, is the plaintiff in an interesting ejectment suit to be tried at the April term of court. Gehr is a son of a captain in the Revolutionary army. Gehr went from Lancaster county to the shores of Conneaut Lake, Crawford county, eighty-three years ago. His father, the military chieftain, was the brother of another and early Baltzer Gehr, who was a member of the legislature from Berks county before the revolution. The legislator died in 1801, and is buried on the farm of 221 acres in Maxatawny township, this county, to recover possession of which the nephew Baltzer, now over a hundred years old, brings the suit in ejectment. When a grand-daughter, the only direct heir of the first Baltzer, died a few years ago unmarried, a contest, full of surprises, to get possession of the farm was begun by collateral relatives of Baltzer the first. One Mrs. Geise first got possession; then a Mrs. Nicely, aged 93, who had a prior claim, was discovered; next an old lady named Rothermel, of Shamokin, superceded Mrs. Nicely. Finally the 100 year-old Baltzer, the nephew was discovered, and his suit is to oust the Nicely and Bothermel and other Gehr heirs, whose suits, proceedings in partition and other legal complications have so clouded the title to the farm that it seems to be inextricably confused.

A Crash at Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 10.—Ten minutes after 7 o'clock this morning the large building on the northwest corner of Church and State streets fell with a crash. A side wall facing Church street had been erected this winter and it is supposed the mortar was frozen and the warm weather of yesterday loosened the bricks and caused it to fall. There were seventeen men at work in the building. An alarm was sounded, which brought out the firemen and police, who are working hard clearing away the debris. The names of those found in the ruins are R. L. Worden, W. Asbold, F. Kohler, S. Burr, W. J. Gould, R. L. Brown, Ransom Porter, A. Dankelspeil, and M. Blair, the latter dead. The owner of the building was on the roof at the time it fell but was not severely injured. Those who were in the basement have probably been killed.

A Prominent Man Appropriates $100,000.

NEW YORK, April 9.—Wall street was thrown into a state of great excitement this afternoon over the report that a well known operator in stocks had defaulted to a very large amount. The report was that he appropriated $100,000 of the trust fund of his family, beside a large amount of property in his charge. The report created the greatest excitement, as the gentleman implicated is a representative of one of the most respected Hebrew families in the city. All sorts of wild estimates were made, but pending the investigation now in progress no definite intelligence could be obtained. The general impression, however, was that the sum would largely exceed $100,000

The Party must be Found.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—A general order issued from the postoffice department to-day says: All letters upon which one full rate of postage has been prepaid, and all postal cards shall be forwarded from the office to which they are addressed to any other office at the request of the person addressed, or of the party whose card may be upon the envelope, or whose name may be signed to the postal card, without additional charge of postage. Such forwarding must be continued until the party addressed is reached.

Assign without Preferences.

NEW YORK, April 9.—The buckle and button house of Williston, Knight & Co., of Nos. 74 and 76 Worth street, have made an assignment to John M. Wardwell with no preferences. W. M. Bliss, president of the Central national bank, at Pearl street and Broadway, said that early in February last it was learned that Mr. H. Williston Knight, son of the senior partner of the firm, (Mr. Williston having been dead for some time), and who was treasurer of the company, had been appropriating money from the firm's funds. The money which he took amounted in all to about $75,000, and it is understood was lost in wild speculations. Under these circumstances it became necessary for the son to sever his connection with the firm. The firm's paper has been steadily depreciating ever since until at length it was found necessary to make an assignment. Young Knight's whereabouts could not be learned. From another source it was learned that he has fled to Europe and was accompanied by an actress.

Buried in a Mine.

ESCANABA, Mich., April 11.—A cave-in occurred at the Tee ridge mine, between Quinesec and Iron Mountain, soon after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, carrying down the engine house and eight men, as follows: Patrick Egan, R. Williams, W. Handerson, J. Morris, T. James, E. Wicks, W. Joffrey, W. Pollard. Up to 8 o'clock last night only one man, Wicks, had been rescued, and he was fatally injured. The men were on the surface. None were at work in the mine. The mine is located two miles west of Quinnesec. The cave-in is embraced in a space of seventy-five to fifty feet, and beside the men engulfed took in all the machinery, including four large boilers. The falling was a distance of two hundred feet. At the present writing it is believed that the lives of all the men are lost. It is estimated that the recovery of the bodies will require a week or more.

Shattered by Thawing Dynamite.

MAHANOY CITY, April 10.—A tunnel is being driven at Knickerbocker colliery, near this town, and a forge was located at its mouth, at which William Davis, a blacksmith, was engaged in sharpening the miners' tools. Yesterday some miners placed several dynamite cartridges near the forge to thaw them for use. While Davis was at work a spark from his fire fell upon the cartridges, and they exploded with terrific force. He was terribly burned about the hands and face, and can scarcely recover. The vicinity of the mouth of the tunnel was badly wrecked. Davis is unmarried, and resided at Shenandoah, to which place he was removed.

An Absurd Story.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 10.—A sensational story telegraphed from Washington to the effect that the British minister has been swindled out of a considerable sum of money by a person who professed to have knowledge of a plot to blow up the British legation building, was positively denied to-day by Minister West. He said that the person mentioned called upon and directed his attention to a matter which upon investigation proved to be unfounded, and which was not in any manner connected with an attempt to blow up the legation building. He paid no money for the alleged information, but merely heard what the person had to say, investigated it and found it untrue.

Restraining the Socialists.

CHICAGO, April 9.—Judge Moran, in the circuit court to-day granted a temporary injunction restraining the socialists from erecting buildings on the lake front of the city under grant by city council. The injunction was asked by owners of property facing the lake on front of park on the theory that the city has no authority over the tract. The socialists had laid a foundation for a large assembly building.

The Victims of the Indian War.

FT. SCOTT, Ks., April 8.—The remains of the late Judge H. G. McComus and his wife, who were recently killed by Indians, arrived here yesterday accompanied by the Judge's brother, Rufus McComus, and his daughters Mary and Ada. They were met at the depot by a committee of citizens and a large number of friends. The funeral took place to day.

The President's Health.

ENTERPRISE, Fla., April 9.—The president and party reached here on Saturday and spent Sunday quietly at Sanford, and started to-day for Kissimmee city, en route to Gardners Island, where the president expects to enjoy camp life for a week or so. The president says he feels benefited by the trip.

The Most Important Yet.

LONDON, April 8.—A man named Ausburg was arrested to day. He had just arrived from America. He is believed to be a friend of the prisoner Gallaher. This arrest is considered one of the most important yet made.

A Rafting Flood.

WILLIAMSPORT, April 9.—The flood in the Susquehanna is now twelve feet and the booms are filling up rapidly. About six million feet of logs are already in. Many rafts are coming down Loyalsock creek.

The New Postmaster General.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 9.—Postmaster General Gresham left this afternoon for Washington.

An Extensive Fire.

BOOTH BAY, Me., April 11.—The extensive works and storehouses of the Knickerbocker ice company, were discovered on fire at 1 o'clock. Eleven great houses, engine house, all extensive "runs" and shops were destroyed, and the fire at 8 o'clock was still raging terribly, with wind blowing a gale.

LATER.—The wharves have also been destroyed. The wind is still blowing hard and the wharves and coal sheds are burning fiercely. The loss is estimated at $50,000. Insurance, $33,000.

Twelve large storehouses, a trussed covered "run" about a quarter of a mile long, two engine houses, storehouses, hay and dunnage houses, coal sheds, etc., and capacious docks were destroyed. A great many men will be thrown out of employment. The company has two other large establishments in this vicinity.

State Legislature.

HARRISBURG, Pa., April 10.—The house to-day passed the bill abolishing the contract system in prisons and reformatory institutions. At the afternoon session the consideration of the legislative apportionment bill on third reading was resumed. It was discussed at length and passed by a strict party vote—yeas 106, nays 82. A bill passed finally to change the manner of electing councilmen in boroughs not having more than six councilmen, three to be elected for one year and three for two, and annually thereafter to elect one-half of the whole number for two years. The bill extending certain provisions of the general license law in Allegheny county was defeated for want of a constitutional majority and the house adjourned to 7.30 p. m.

Dukes Returns to Uniontown.

UNIONTOWN, April 11.—N. L. Dukes arrived here yesterday on horseback from his mother's in German township, where he has been in seclusion since the night of the day he was ordered to quit this town. He stopped at the Jennings house, of course, and refreshed himself with the cheerful associations of the old room in which Captain Nutt was slain. In the afternoon he made his first public appearance on the streets of Uniontown since his acquittal. Accompanied by a friend he walked up to his law office near the court house, and in an hour or two he returned again to the hotel.

Denies the Report.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Mr. Thos. F. Oakes, vice president of the Northern Pacific railroad, to-night denied that there was any truth in the rumor of an arrangement or lease between the Northern Pacific and Central railroads. The only business transaction that has lately taken place between them is a traffic contract the same as exists between all other railroads.

A Strike in Prospective.

PITTSBURG, April 9.—The cigar makers of this city met to-night and decided to strike on May 1, unless the manufacturers concede their demand for an increase of one dollar per thousand. The manufacturers say they will not grant the advance. There are 500 cigar makers in this city.

Another Hotel Burned.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., April 9.—The Logan House, the oldest hotel in the city, owned by Mrs. Rogers, a sister of General Logan, was burned last night, Mrs. Rogers and two girls narrowly escaping with their lives. R. W. Swope, a commercial traveller, was burned to death.

Shut Down.

PHILADELPHIA, April 11.—The Greenwood rolling mill company, Charles P. Schoener, president, has suspended payments and the works located at Tamaqua have been shut down. The company refuses to make a statement until the books are examined.

Refuse to Interfere.

TRENTON, N. J., April 10.—The board of pardons has refused to interfere in the case of James Greglown, who murdered his sweetheart, Minnie Chirgwin. He will be hanged on the 18th inst.

On a Strike.

READING, Pa., April 11.—The employes in the pipe mill of the Mellor foundry and machine shops have struck on account of having to work overtime without pay.

Took the Oath of Office.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—Postmaster General Gresham took the oath of office to day and subsequently received the employes of the department.

Injunction Continued.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Judge Barrett has continued the injunction restraining the production of the Passion Play.

PLAIN WORDS ARE BEST.—We learn that certain people find fault with W. E. Clarke, of Providence, R. I., for not "writing up" his great kidney medicine, Hunt's Remedy, in more flowrey style. It is not Mr. Clarke, but his critics, who are foolish. What does a man who is threatened with Bright's Disease, or any disease of the kidneys, bladder, liver or urinary organs most require—fine words or a cure? In Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine, he gets the cure—a sure cure.

"Are Smokers a Nuisance?" asks the New York Mail. Well, that depends. The smokers of hams are not anyway.

Precious Hope—Peruna.

One morning while he (her husband) was holding her up in order that she could breathe more easily, after having struggled with a bad spell of coughing, he made the remark that he did not believe that she ever would get well, when she, in her weakness, said: "Yes, I will, if you will bring Dr. Hartman." The doctor was brought. He prescribed a teaspoonful of Peruna every hour. She began to improve from the first dose she took. She told me to-day that she has never felt better in her life than she does now, and that she cannot say too much for Peruna.

A. J. MILLER.

Her husband writes: "South Chicago, Ill., Dec. 19, 1881; I have a living witness of the virtue of Peruna in my wife, who was saved from death by it. I certify that every word on page 30 in Dr. Hartman's book on the "Ills of Life" is true in every particular.

—The very large sign suspended across Allegheny street from the Bee Hive stores is, we understand, to be a permanent affair. It was manufactured in New York City at a cost of $75. Having such a large and elegant stock, they do not hesitate to announce the fact in such terms as cannot fail to be understood.

A Visiting Artist.

Mr. and Mrs. Burgheim, of Syracuse, New York, are at present sojourning at the Bush House, Mrs. B., who is an accomplished lady, expecting to enjoy the hospitality of that hotel about two months. The lady is an excellent artist and will thoroughly enjoy her visit in this romantic region and will also recuperate her health, which is now somewhat delicate.

She is an indefatigable student of the art of painting and has hanging in the Bush House parlor numerous exquisite specimens of her handiwork which we are confident will be acknowledged to be some of the finest works of art ever brought to this place. They include large portraits of herself and her husband which were copied from cabinet photographs and are exceedingly natural and life-like.

Another dainty gem is a collection of five tiny chickens drinking water from a dish. It was copied from a real scene and shows the young fledglings in the various exquisite poses which they assume in that—to them—important operation. Next are two unusually beautiful panel pictures, which are now so popular. They represent a Summer scene and an Autumn scene, and here the artistic touches of color, the lights and shadows, the characteristic employments of the persons who complete the scenes, the murmuring brooklets and golden tinted foliage combine to bring out the chief points of the pictures in a manner that will delight the eye. Midway between these is another real scene—not fancy—of two dogs equipped by their youthful masters to haul them in a little cart. The good-natured dogs, the delight of the children and the animated life of the picture make it truly attractive and worthy of a master's touch.

Now we approach the chef d'oeuvre of the collection—a wild scene, we first thought, of the sea, but which is really a view of Chapel rock, Lake Superior, with the mountainous waves dashing in fury against it. A sea-worn vessel sailing "o'er the main"—it may be to death. Those who have not beheld the great lakes in the midst of one of those terrific storms that sometimes rage upon them may in this scene behold a correct delineation of such an appalling occurrence—true even to the forked lightning flash which casts a lurid gradeur over all. Another, equally beautiful, and more admired by some, is a view of the White Mountains, which we have not space to allude to at length. These two pictures, which are large and richly framed, are offered for sale by the artist who executed them as they are too cumbersome to carry around.

Mrs. Burgheim will employ her time while tarrying in town by giving instruction in this beautiful art to those who desire to learn. She will also, we understand, fill orders for those who desire portraits. Bellefonte ladies will find it to their advantage to call and inspect these beautiful paintings and make the acquaintance of the artist.

In Memoriam.

The members of Victor Grange adopted the following tribute of respect to the memory of Mrs. Kate P., wife of Worthy Master A. W. Dale, who died at her home in Oak Hall Centre county, Pa., March 29th, 1883:

Called upon to mourn the loss of one of our original members, we desire to express the profound sense of sorrow which we feel in her death. We shall miss her in our Society of which she was a vainable member. Possessed of a genial disposition, she won many friends outside the family circle where she will be missed, oh! how sadly.

Three weary weeks of suffering and
"The silver cord is loosed,
The golden bowl broken."

The short life is ended, her work is done and she is called to lay down her sheaves at the Master's feet.

"Up and away, like the odors of sunset
That sweeten the twilight as darkness comes on;
So was her life, a thing felt, but not noticed,
She is but remembered by what she has done."

Though as a family and society we mourn, yet we recognize the voice of our Heavenly Father in this call, and bow in humble and chastened submission to His will.

To the sorrow stricken husband and motherless children we tender our warmest sympathy and point them to the source of all comfort in this hour of need.

A copy of this to be presented to the family of deceased and recorded on the minutes of the Society; also sent to the Farmers Friend, Bellefonte Republican and Democratic Watchman for publication.

MRS. FELIX DALE,
MRS. JAMES GILLILAND.

—The meetings under the auspices of the Society of Friends were largely attended and let us hope that the fervent exhortations of the ministers may be fruitful of much good.

An Explanation.

It is our desire to do justice to all parties and therefore we shall make an explanation in regard to the fight that was reported to have taken place in an "up town bar-room" on Saturday night, the 7th instant. The bar room in question is connected with the New Brockerhoff House, and from the frequency of fights in that vicinity we at length felt obliged to throw out at least a "gentle hint" that less frequent demonstrations will be more acceptable to the community. A gentleman in authority made a statement in this office a few days ago, which we think will be surprising as well as pleasing to that portion of the community who never go near the bar room.

First, the man's ankle was not broken, but only sprained and the leader slightly fractured.

Second, the outside doors of the bar room are closed between 10 and 11 o'clock every night to the public, after which only guests can obtain liquor at the hotel, and they are deprived of that privilege after 11 o'clock. No one can obtain liquor at the bar on Sunday.

Third, an effort has been made with some success to exclude the more quarrelsome persons from the privileges of the bar. For that reason, they are accustomed to take revenge by assembling in front of the bar room to fight, thus bringing it into bad repute.

The individual who was injured on Saturday night was unusually quarrelsome and abusive, demanding whiskey after the hour for selling it to the public had expired, and the bar keeper gave him merited punishment only after severe provocation, the man applying several vile epithets to him. What he did was solely in self-defense.

It is the wish of the public in that vicinity and also would be welcome to the proprietor of the hotel if the council would see fit to keep a policeman regularly stationed in the vicinity of the Diamond at night. It is a very public place and seems to be the spot chosen for what fights do occur in Bellefonte.

From all we have seen of the proprietor of the hotel or his employes we believe them to be gentlemen, and are willing to believe that the bar room of the hotel is conducted in perfect accord with law and order.

Particulars from Port Matilda.

PORT MATILDA, April 9, '83.

Spring is at hand at Port M., and the farmers are brightening up their ploughshares preparatory to commencing their spring work; nevertheless, snow lies 18 inches deep in the woods near by.

The enterprising firm of Chaney & Thompson will soon have their new steam saw-mill in running order. It is considerably larger than the one destroyed by fire.

Some of the Port Matilda schools have already closed their winter terms and the others will close this week. Miss Nora Osman, of Potters Mills, this county, who closed her school in our village last week, will remain a few weeks longer. She is going to teach a select school for a term of ten weeks, beginning April 16th. Miss Sallie Barr has given up her school at Port Matilda and will go to another place to teach during the summer.

Elmer Vaughn, aged about 15 years, son of Joseph Vaughn, of Port Matilda, met with quite a serious accident today (Monday) while chopping cord wood in one of Chaney & Thompson's coal jobs. While at work his axe glanced off and struck one of his feet, severing all of his toes from the foot. Dr. U. S. Harshberger was summoned and dressed the injured member, and at this writing the young man is doing as well as could be expected. H.

Destructive Fire near Mt. Eagle.

The residence of Mr. William T. Leathers, near Mt. Eagle, was burned to the ground on Monday of last week. It was quite a handsome house and was valued at $2000. A large part of Mr. Leathers' furniture was saved, although some of it, including valuable bed clothing, was destroyed with the house.

It was doubtless caused by fire falling from the stove and when discovered it had made too much progress to stop. At one time when the wind blew quite violently it was feared that the barn would also catch fire but that danger was happily averted by a change of the wind. The unexpected event occasions Mr. Leathers and family much inconvenience. The loss was about $2,000; insurance $1500.

—This is the way the special election ordered for Tuesday April 10, resulted: For Town Council—D. K. Tate, 117; H. Y. Stitzer, Esq., 67. Signed by Hon. John B. Linn, Judge; Peter A. Wilhelm, Inspector; James D. Gordon, Inspector. Now we move that Councilman D. K. Tate treat to the ice cream.

Death of an Early Resident of Bellefonte.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning Rev. C. Graham received a telegram from Clearfield announcing the sudden death of his oldest brother, Mr. B. Graham, which occurred the night previous from paralysis. Deceased was born at Big Spring, near Bellefonte, and was aged 72 years. He was at one time the lumber king of Clearfield county, and was connected with and leader of many enterprises in that section, which ranked him with the prominent, useful and esteemed citizens of the place; was a life-long member of the Presbyterian church, and at the time of his death a ruling elder.

We have inquired of one of Bellefonte's local historians regarding the correctness of the above and find that the deceased, Mr. James B. Graham, is distinctly remembered here. He was the son of Mr. John Graham and the son-in-law of William Alexander, who was an early and widely known citizen of this county and was elected one of its first sheriffs. The deceased was married to Sheriff Alexander's daughter, Elizabeth. Mr. John Graham, father of the deceased, was a citizen of this county as early as 1801.

Death of Mr. Michael Nofsker.

Spring Mills lost an excellent citizen in the death of Mr. Michael Nofsker, of that place, who breathed his last on Friday, the 6th instant.

He was born on the 4th of July, 1817, and was consequently 65 years, 9 months and 2 days old when he died. He was married at the age of 25 years and his widow still survives. He was the brother-in-law of Rev. M. P. Crosthwaite, of Mill Hall, and of Mr. Benjamin Herring, of the firm of Scott & Co., Lock Haven. His home at Spring Mills was always the scene of generous hospitality. He excelled in all those traits which make a good citizen

His last hours were peaceful and happy. When asked if he was ready to depart and be with God he responded affirmatively with a calm confidence that indicated the assurance that he had made his peace with his Creator, Friend and Judge.

Funeral services were held in the Spring Mills M. E. church on Sunday afternoon. Rev. Mr. Adams, of Center Hall, preached the sermon, and Rev. Mr. Wolf, county superintendent of public schools, assisted in the services. The church was crowded with sympathizing relatives and friends.

—There is no doubt, says an exchange, that the habit of carrying concealed weapons is at the root of most of the crimes of violence chronicled from day to day. If men had not a weapon at hand when they become incensed, they would not cut or shoot. If they had to seek a weapon, in nine cases out of ten they would not make themselves criminals. Again, many of the distressing accidents that cloud families and cut short precious lives are due to keeping loaded weapons in homes, where they are likely to be handled recklessly. In discharging a boy, who was acquitted of shooting a companion, on the ground that, though he handled a revolver carelessly, the shooting was accidental, Judge Gildersleeve, ex Captain of the American Rifle Team, said: "You should not have a loaded pistol upon your person, or about you. I may claim that I have had an extensive experience in handling firearms, yet I would as soon have a rattlesnake about me as a loaded gun, and one is likely to be as dangerous as the other."

—About 4 a. m. on Tuesday, the 10th, as a Lock Haven extra was passing Eagleville, this county, a brakeman named George Sloth, expecting that the train would stop and take water, climbed down the side of the car and while in the act stooped over too far and was struck and knocked to the ground by the plug. He was picked up in an unconscious condition, placed in the caboose and taken to the home of a relative, Mrs. Dougherty in Tyrone. The attending physician discovered his side and hip badly bruised, but no bones broken. There was also a gash over his right eye two and a half inches long as well as smaller cuts and bruises.

—The rumor that all the residences in Cheapside will be purchased by one individual for the purpose of tearing them down and converting the land into a pond for the propagation of gold fish and eels is probably not correct. We have chased the rumor to its source and find that it bubbles from a miniature spring on top of Nittany mountain. We have plenty of other rumors of the same sort on hand, but shall not divulge them until we put a French roof on the building in which this journal is published and cover the entrance with a superior quality of Axminster carpet.

Spring Sensations.

Those men who rest near every lamp post they come to are not intoxicated—it's a bad case of Spring fever.

It is interesting to see a 150 lb. man carry a 300-lb. Saratoga trunk up a flight of 20 steps.

Capitalists are determined to make Bellefonte the centre of a net work of railroads.

If people are not sufficiently clothed and fed it is not because merchants are not pressing enough in their invitations to the people to come and purchase what they want. Their establishments are also made to look very attractive, as pedestrians on High and Allegheny streets can abundantly testify.

The fire which destroyed the house of Mr. William T. Leathers, near Mt. Eagle, on Monday, the 9th instant, was first observed by people at Mt. Eagle, a half mile away. They ran to the scene of the conflagration and found Mr. Leathers' family quietly partaking of their noon-day meal, entirely oblivious of the fact that the house was burning above their heads.

Belligerent demonstrations made by the Italians on the Buffalo Run railroad were apparently of little consequence and all is quiet in that vicinity now. The individual who caused the unpleasantness has disappeared and peace reigns supreme.

Valentines' New Track Scales.

Mr. Thomas Burnside has just finished putting up for Messrs. Valentine & Co. one Reihle Bros. eighty thousand pound railroad track scales with a patent double beam attachment. These scales are so well known in the different departments of railroad service, steel and iron works that they can be found in nearly all parts of the United States and in all the departments of the government. By a system of links, chains and rocking blocks which they have secured it is comparatively a modern form of weighing machinery. These are the first scales of the kind ever put up in this county. They are 40 feet in length. By several very delicate tests employed they were found to weigh the most insignificant article—even a hatchet or a spike—with great accuracy.

—Rev. John Hewitt, rector of the P. E. church, visited Northumberland last week, returning on Wednesday. His mission in that city was to officiate at the wedding of Mr. Frank L. Sheppard, superintendent of motive power of the Pennsylvania railroad, to Miss Mary E. Kapp, daughter of Major Amos Kapp, a prominent citizen of that place. The ceremony was performed at the Episcopal church in Northumberland, in the presence of a large and distinguished company. A reception followed at the residence of the bride's parents, where the wedding gifts, rich and elegant and comprising every article which the fancy of the donors could suggest, were displayed. In the evening Mr. Sheppard and his bride left Northumberland in a special car, intending to visit Washington and other cities in the south and east.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer.

It is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from all dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, whisq sulphur, sugar of lead, and nitrate of silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggists for it. Each bottle is warranted. Smith, Kline & Co., Wholesale Agents, Philadelphia, and Hall & Ruckel, New York. 14-24-1y

—Another railroad charter was issued last week. This time it is for the Sinnemahoning and Sheffield railway company—a line running between the counties of Cameron, and Elk at Bennett's branch of Sinnemahoning creek by the most feasible route to Sheffield in Warren county. The length is sixty-five miles and the capital stock of the company $390,600. Charles P. Early, of Ridgeway, is the President.

—The iron fence around Mr. James Sommerville's handsome property on Spring street is being repaired.

Is a new remedy, originally compounded and introduced to the medical profession, and then to the public at large, by S. B. Hartman, M. D. He has prescribed it to over 40,000 patients with the most gratifying results.

Its effect upon the system is entirely unlike that of any other remedy, and is the only medicine needed in almost every disease to which flesh is heir. [In Constipation, Diseases of the Liver and Kidneys, MANALIN should be given with it.

PERUNA is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, each one, according to medical authors, a great remedy in itself.

Dr. Hartman has succeeded in extracting and combining the active principles of these ingredients into one simple compound, which perfectly coincides with the VIS MEDICATRIX NATURÆ in every disease, and a cure necessarily follows. There is not an organ it will not reach nor a disease it will not cure.

has just received another lot of small Stem Winding Watches in Silver and Nickel, just the thing to make a boy happy, as it's the height of any boy's ambition to carry a Watch. These are reliable and serviceable, and are not expensive.

Also some more of those little bits of Watches which are so fashionable among the girls. These are much worn in other places and are considered just the thing.

A large line of Children's sets of Knife, Fork and Spoon with and without cases in Extra and Triple Plate. They are decidedly elegant goods; much more so than at any other season. A very few dozen of the Genuine Rogers' Triple-Plated Knives. They are as cheap as the imitation and worth twice the price of any other knife offered

A Gold Headed Cane would likely be just the thing you are looking for; they are useful, ornamental and always appreciated.

Gold Thimbles from the lowest in price to the most elegant. They are always just the thing and last a lifetime, and you can make no mistake.

See the Castors and Cake Baskets

I would like to show you my leading Tea Set—cheap and just the thing for actual use, Copper Bottom, and can be set on the stove and used the same as Britannia or tinware, and they come very little higher than a common unplated set.

Some people thought it foolish to bring a stock of Fine Diamonds to Bellefonte, but they will find considerably more Diamonds worn here after the holidays than before

Your attention is particularly called to Japanese wares. They are genuine goods made in Japan and not in Jersey. They must be closed out this week as I have no room to keep them over. They are all below the cost of importation and some of them are given away for nothing.

—A very handsome passenger coach, which is really an old one repaired in first-class style, was placed on the Snow Shoe road last week. It is prettily finished inside. If the company continue to furnish such accommodations no cause of complaint can be found.

—Commissioner Shaughensey has opened war on the ash heaps and a great improvement in the appearance of some of the streets is noticeable. Go on with the good work, Thomas, and don't slack up until every pile of rubbish is laid low. Fevers and other destroying diseases are the products of filthy streets.

A HANDSOME HOUSE.

On Thursday afternoon a reporter of this journal had the pleasure of inspecting the interior of the handsome residence which Mr. Isaac Thomas is erecting for the occupancy of himself and family. It is located next to his present home on Thomas street and is of course the finest structure in that end of town. The contract price was $11,500, but it will form no exception to the rule in such cases, the total cost far exceeding that amount.

From what will some day be an elegantly terraced, grass-grown lawn the visitor enters from a cozy porch into a wide, airy front hall from which a broad, easy flight of stairs ascends to the second floor. A commodious parlor extending the entire length of the hall occupies the right of the first floor In this apartment, as also in the sitting room and dining room to which we shall afterwards refer, are low-down grates from which the ashes descend into the ashpits in the cellar. An elaborately carved mantel above the parlor grate cost the fancy price of $122 and is not included in the contract price of the house.

On the left of the hallway is the sitting room which is finished in hard maple, has a lovely bay-window and, as we have already stated, a low down grate. The mantel in this apartment is made in imitation of Italian marble. To the rear of this is the dining room which is well lighted. It is finished in genuine cherry, has the low down grate before alluded to, ornate mantel, a large double cupboard with drawers and locker between the upper and lower apartments and many other conveniences. The kitchen, still further in the rear, is a model apartment. Its costly and convenient Chilson range with double ovens into one of which all the heat can be conveyed and the work of baking expedited; its convenient supplies of hot and cold water; its roomy cupboard and the many other desirable features which it contains are calculated to awaken the envy of all careful housewives who behold them. The kitchen is finished in oak, and very neat pressed bricks are built around the range to protect it from contact with the wall. Throughout the house are inside blinds, and outside shutters protect every window on the first floor while exterior blinds will protect those above. All the rooms, including the hallways, on the first and second floors, are heated from an immense furnace in the cellar. There is also a large pantry in the rear of the hall under the stairway.

At the head of the stairway on the second floor is a hallway, from which doors on the right side lead into two pleasant sleeping apartments—the one in front intended for a guests chamber and the one in the rear for members of the family. These rooms are located over the parlor. On the other side of the hall are also two chambers—the one in front (over the sitting room) having a bay-window from which an extended view of the town and country in three directions may be obtained; a large closet and a very fine low-down grate surmounted by a mantle of modern style. It is the finest sleeping apartment in the house and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas will appropriate it to their own use. The children's room back of this, has also its closet, the heating appliances mentioned in connection with the other apartment and a costly mantel ordered expressly for this room and costing $38. A bath room fitted up with all modern appliances is entered from this apartment. The rear room on this floor is intended as a servant's apartment. There is an outside door leading from it upon a neat portico and hence into the conservatory, which, like all the rooms, will be heated from the large furnace. The hall on the second flour is finished in walnut, Mr. Andrew Loneberger, who had the contract for putting the proper finish on the woodwork in all parts of the house, employing the services of Mr. Jerry Fasic for this particular part of the work.

There are four well finished apartments on the third floor from which fine views may be obtained and will be very pleasant sleeping apartments in the summer.

A brick wash house stands on the southern exposure of the house connected with which is a large smokehouse.

The cellar is also divided into compartments for range and furnace coal, receptacles for storing vegetables, milk closets, etc. The floors are cement as are also the walls in the milk closet. The furnace is one of the Reynolds Keystone manufacture.

A fine stable and ice house stand on the rear of the lot. There is considerable work yet to be done on the grounds, which will be put in fine order within the next two months, after which its owner and his family expect to enjoy it to their heart's content, and where we hope they will have reason to increase in the belief that "There's no place like Home."

The Presbytery of Huntingdon.

Condensed from Altoona Tribune correspondence:

This gathering of Presbyterian ministers and lay representatives of the churches in this vicinity assembled in the church at Mifflintown on Tuesday morning, April 10, at 11 o'clock. A large congregation was present. Rev. J. J. Coale, of Arch Spring, preached the opening sermon. Subject, "The warfare for the propagation of the Gospel of Christ"—I Corinthians 3:5.

Rev. S. W. Pomeroy, of Mount Union, was elected moderator; Rev Preston Barr, recording clerk, and Rev. J. V. Bell, reading clerk.

Rev. J. L. Russell was received from the presbytery of Philadelphia central and accepted a call to the Second church of Altoona.

The name of Perrysville church was changed to Port Royal.

Rev. Thomas McNinch was dismissed to the presbytery of Red River.

Rev. N. G. White, the venerable pastor of the Williamsburg church, was, at his own request, on the ground of advancing age, released from the charge of that church.

The pastoral relation between Rev. W. W. Woodend, D.D., and the church of Philipsburg was dissolved by request of Dr. Woodend, and at the request of Rev. E. P. Foresman, the pastoral relation between himself and the churches of Kylerstown and Bradford. The name of Mr. P. J. Coyle was dropped from the roll of credentials, he having entered the ministry of the Congregational church.

A report was read by Rev. William Laurie, of this place, from the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Huntingdon Presbytery, showing the existence of 32 societies and 16 bands, and contributions amounting to $3,058.29 during the past year. Rev. J. J. Francis and Rev. William Laurie were appointed to present a paper expressive of the cordial sympathy and hearty co-operation of the Presbytery with the ladies and children in their great work, which they did, and the paper was unanimously adopted. A committee consisting of Rev. Dr. Hamill, Rev. William Laurie, and Elder S. C. Stewart, was appointed to co-operate with the ladies and the work for foreign missions.

Rev. E. P. Foresman was dismissed to the presbytery of Grand Forks, Dakota. A call was presented by the church of Mann's Choice to Rev. George K. Scott.

The October meeting of Presbytery was appointed to be held at Mount Union.

At 8 o'clock in the evening the presbytery attended by special invitation a social reception at the residences of Mr. E. S. Parker and Dr. Thomas A. Elder, which was much enjoyed.

The Statistical report showed that 385 conversions have occurred and twelve churches have been blessed with revivals.

Mr. James Sommerville was elected a commissioner to the next general assembly at Saratoga.

The pastoral relation between Rev. McNight Williamson and the church of Bethel was dissolved.

—The business of the Telephone Exchange continues to increase in proportions, thirteen new subscribers having recently been secured in this place, making seventy-five in all. The new ones are Adam Hoy, Esq., Mr. Frank Stover, D. H. Hastings, Esq., D. S. Keller, Esq., Mr. W. S. Zeller, Mr. J. F. Mann's residence, Mr. Joseph Ceaders, Messrs. Joseph Bros., T. R. Reynolds & Co.'s flouring mill, W. F. Reynolds & Co.'s bank, Sheriff T. J. Dunkle's office, the Commissioners' office and the Prothonotary's office. In Snow Shoe Mr. John Uzzle has been added to the list. There are good prospects that the line will be extended as far as Pine Grove, at which place two subscribers have been secured, while several others in the same place are "almost persuaded." There are five subscribers at State College, one at Centre Furnace, four in all at Boalsburg and on the way to Lemont, and two at the latter place. In all probability, this line, including all the above points, will be completed by the 1st of June.

—Signs multiply, says the Lock Haven Journal, that to the retail purchaser the reduction of the tax on cigars will make little or no difference. The cigar makers, in view of the easy abatement of $3 per 1000 in the tax, demand $1 of it to be added to their pay, and they will likely get it. The manufacturers will reserve most of the balance for themselves, and even if there is an apparent reduction in the price to jobbers and retailers the average smoker will not get it.

Wedding Chimes.

Two pleasant weddings were consummated on Thursday last.

The first, at 12 o'clock m., occurred at Spring Mills, the fair bride being Miss Lizzie Jamison, of Spring street, this place, and the happy groom Mr. Samuel Mulbarger, an employe of Mann's Axe Works. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the groom's brother-in-law, Mr. Samuel Leitzell, of Spring Mills, Pa., Mr. Adams, pastor of the Centre Hall M. E. church, officiating. The happy couple partook of dinner at Mr. Leitzell's home and then came to Bellefonte, where at 8 o'clock p. m., they sat down to a generously supplied supper table at the residence of the bride's father on Spring street. They deserve and have the hearty congratulations of many friends.

Since the above paragraph was written we have learned more particularly regarding the happy event. The solemnization of the ceremony at the residence of Mr. Samuel Leitzell, at Spring Mills, was quite an elegant affair and was witnessed by a large company. Miss Julia Leitzell and Mr. George Leitzell, daughter and son, respectively, of Mr. Samuel Leitzell, and cousins of the groom, supported the happy pair, the former as bridesmaid and the latter as groomsman. The presents received were numerous and quite valuable. That the refreshments spread for the delectation of the bride and groom and their assembled friends at the home of the bride's father, Mr. William Jamison, of this place, on their arrival in the evening, were tempting in the extreme we are quite sure as the reporter received a box of delicious cake which afforded him at least a taste of the happiness which he hopes may be the lasting portion of the happy pair through life.

The residence of our popular and well known citizen, Mr. John Hoffer, on corner Spring and Logan streets, was the scene of the second wedding, at 7:30 p. m. The bride was Miss Maggie Schrom, niece of Mr. Hoffer, and daughter of Mr. Jacob Schrom, the saddler. The groom was Mr. Samuel Skean, an employe of the Nail Works. Rev. J. F. Delong, of the Reformed church, officiated. They went immediately to housekeeping last night in nicely furnished apartments in Mr. D. G. Bush's new building on High street. Mr. Skean is a very excellent young gentleman and came to Bellefonte from Pottstown. Again let us tender our compliments and congratulations.

Installation of Officers.

Constans Commandery of Knights Templar held an installation of officers Friday evening, the election of the officers installed having occurred on the evening of Friday, March 9. They were then published in these columns as follows:

Eminent Commander, Rev. John Hewitt.
Generalissimo, William F. Reber.
Captain General, J. C. Harper.
Recorder, George B. Weaver.
Treasurer, John P. Harris.
Trustees, Robert McKnight, H. Y. Stitzer and D. Z. Kline.

The installation on this occasion was entirely private, the only additional ceremony indulged in being a treat of ice cream all around. The following additional officers were appointed:

Prelate, S. D. Gray, Esq.
Senior Warden, J. I. Hagerman.
Junior Warden, F. P. Blair.
Standard Bearer, Edward Tyson.
Sword Bearer, Herman Haupt.
Warder, H. S. Hale.
Captains of the Guard, Alexander Patton, William McClellan and Geo. T. Brew.
Sentinel, J. S. Parsons.

Temperance Resolutions.

The Presbytery of Huntingdon, in session at Mifflintown last week, adopted the following resolutions as indicative of its views on an important question:

Resolved, 1st. That the Presbytery of Huntingdon, in session at Mifflintown, this 10th day of April, 1883, representing 55 ministers, 69 churches, 9395 members, embracing the 7 counties of Bedford, Blair, Clearfield, Centre, Huntingdon, Juniata and Mifflin, deem it eminently proper and timely to respectfully petition and urge the Legislature of Pennsylvania to grant the people, by necessary legislative action, the privilege of voting on this question unencumbered by any other issue.

2nd, that copies of this action, signed by the Moderator and Stated Clerk, and properly certified to by latter, be sent to Hon. J. H. Longenecker, of the Senate and Hon. W. C. Pomeroy of the House, to be presented to the Senate and House respectively, and that all the representatives in the Legislature from the bounds of this Presbytery be requested to use their best endeavor to secure the desired legislation.

—As the Pittsburg company owning the territory in Cambria county for the Bell telephone has failed to enter into any reasonable conditions for the erection of a line between Carroltown and Ebensburg, there is some talk of making a move to have the Western Union telegraph company extend its line from Ebensburg to Carroltown.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. John Sourbeck has again engaged in the express business.

Mr. George Miller, proprietor of one of the Spring Mills hotels, was a visitor in town one day recently.

Mr. Al. Baney is able to be about again and is recovering from the recent severe sprain of his left ankle.

Mr. S. Sellers, a prominent business man of Stormstown, favored Bellefonte with his presence on Monday.

A former esteemed Bellefonte citizen, Mr. Charles Fryberger, now of Philipsburg, arrived in town Monday morning.

Mr. John Kirchmeyer, of Valentines Store Company, "Limited," spent Sunday at his home in Williamsport.

Mr. J. E. Way, formerly a resident of Buffalo Run, has moved upon the Whitmer farm, about four miles from this place.

Miss Carr and Miss Dillon of Altoona are visiting friends in this place. They are now the guests of Mrs. Murphy, of Water street.

Mrs. John P. Harris and daughter returned from Northumberland last Friday where they attended the Sheppard-Kapp wedding.

Mrs. Charles Smith and daughter, Millie, of this place, are in Houtzdale, the guests of Mrs. George Wooden, Mrs. Smith's sister-in-law.

Mr. James Van Ormer and his son, J. Reese Van Ormer, are both experiencing an attack of illness, which we hope is but temporary.

Mr. Charles Valentine was out Monday morning for the first time in three weeks, during which he has been suffering a siege of illness.

Mr. P. J. Woleslagle, at one time major of Fifth regiment, N. G. of Pa., has just changed his place of residence from Curwensville to Altoona.

Miss Flora Fox arrived in town from Virginia on Wednesday evening and is now the guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Teller, of the Bush House.

Mr. John Sourbeck traveled toward Pittsburg a few days ago, where, we suppose, he visited his mother and other relatives residing in that city.

We have heard that Mr. Al. Haupt is to be chief clerk at the Potter House, Philipsburg. If so, guests will be warmly and gracefully welcomed.

Mrs. J. H. Crissman, of Philipsburg, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver, in this place, returned to her home on Saturday evening.

Rev. George Penepacker, of the M. E. church, traveled toward State College Sunday afternoon, where he preached before the Faculty and students of that institution.

Rev. William Laurie and Mr. James Harris represented the Bellefonte Presbyterian church in the Presbytery of Huntingdon, in session at Mifflintown, Pa., last week.

Rev. Mr. Barron, of Hollidaysburg, preached in the Bellefonte Presbyterian church on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Laurie, the pastor loci, being away from town, we believe in Philadelphia.

D. F. Fortney, Esq., has been elected borough solicitor of Millheim with a salary of something less than $10,000 per annum. He will be able to give the Millheim authorities some fine points in regard to borough government.

The Messrs. Goldsmith, proprietors of the Bee Hive stores, with their father, Mr. L. Goldsmith, and sister, Miss Fannie Goldsmith, are now in the full enjoyment of house-keeping on Linn street in the Guggenheimer property. They moved in on Saturday last.

Mine host. Mr. W. R. Teller, of the Bush House, "bobs up serenely from below" and says that the famous hostelry over which he presides is second to no hotel in Bellefonte in the care and surveillance exerted over the operations of its bar and its perfect compliance with the law of the the land and regard to the good order of the community. We are glad the hotels emulate one another in this respect.

—The usual number of fights occurred on Saturday evening.

Death of the Venerable Mr. Allen Schroyer.

At his home on Thomas street on Sunday evening an aged resident of this place, Mr. Allen Schroyer, passed away from the scenes and events of time and entered upon the future life which shall last throughout eternity. He had been ill during all of the past winter, but with the return of Spring came a partial recovery of health and strength and his friends entertained the hope that, although an aged man, he might survive for a long time. On Sunday afternoon, in company with his wife, he took a short walk. At six o'clock he became suddenly and violently ill and at 9:30 o'clock he quietly breathed his last, his bedside surrounded by loving relatives and friends and his last hours cheered by a better hope than any earthly aspiration can give.

Mr. Schroyer was the father of a large family, the widow who survives him being his second wife. Five daughters and a son were the offspring of the first union, four of the daughters still surviving. They are Mrs. Daniel Garman, Mrs. Jonathan Harper and Mrs. Henry Hoffman of this place, and Mrs. Ivens, of Milton. Four sons were the issue of the second union, all of whom survive. They are Charles Schroyer, who holds a responsible position in a large manufacturing establishment in Jeffersonville, Indiana; Benjamin Schroyer, messenger for Adams Express Co., with headquarters in Altoona; Hayes Schroyer, weigh agent for the same company at Lancaster, Pa; and Harry Schroyer, a member of the firm of Harper Bros., general merchandise store in this place.

The deceased was 73 years of age last September. He was born in Berks county, where he lived until the age of seven years when he moved to Milton, Northumberland county. There he resided until 1850 when he moved to Lock Haven, living in that city until 1871, when he came to Bellefonte. Mr. Jesse Schroyer, a brother of the deceased, is a prominent citizen of Lewisburg.

A Bellefonte Thoroughfare.

The street on which perhaps the most important improvements have taken place during the past year is Willow Bank street, lying along the road to Roopsburg beyond Logan Branch creek. Several new and very tasteful dwelling houses have been erected and those that have been built for some time are resplendent under fresh paint and other improvements. In the neatness and taste of the private residences it compares with Linn street. The most notable improvement is in the property of Gen. William H. Blair, which has been enlarged and the entire exterior appearance changed, and is now a really handsome private residence.

—Manager Malin, of the telephone service, who spent part of last week at home, hauled off his coat one night and put in several hours of hard labor making some much needed improvements at the exchange office, principally the transferring of the instruments to a more commodious position, giving the operator more light and an increased allowance of elbow-room. Other improvements of a like nature are contemplated.

—The stockholders of the Bald Eagle Valley railroad company held their annual election in Philadelphia on the 10th, and elected the following officers: President, L. A. Mackey; Directors, Edmund Blanchard, A. G Curtin, J. N. Dubarry, James Duffy, James M. Gamble, John P. Green, John Irwin, Jr., Strickland Kneass, C. A. Meyer, Wistar Morris, G. B. Roberts and Edmund Smith.
